JAPANESE SEAMEN PATROL SHANGHAI AS TENSION RISES

"Far Stronger Measures Must be Applied"

EMBASSY WARNING FOLLOWS MURDER OF BLUEJACKET

Shanghai, Sept. 23.

Japanese patrols to-night crossed the International Settlement's boundary into Chinese territory and approximately 500 bluejackets are patrolling the Japanese district of Hongkew and the adjacent Chinese administered section of the city, Chapei.

A Japanese Embassy spokesman declared:

"Our indignation at this latest outrage is unbounded. We can no longer trust the Chinese assurances and must regretfully take whatever steps we consider suitable."

Throughout the night Japanese officials here have been preparing to follow the sternest policy. The Japanese Acting Consul-General, Mr. Terasaki, has sent a note to the International Settlement's Municipal Council and also the Shanghai Municipal Government asking co-operation in the search for the murderers of the Japanese seaman, who was shot down by unidentified gunmen last night, and whose two companions, also bluejackets, were wounded.

It is reliably learned that the commander of the permanent Japanese Naval Landing Party in Shanghai, is preparing to announce to-morrow independent measures for the protection of Japanese nationals.

The present Shanghai force at his command is less than 2,000, but 4,500 reinforcements are due to arrive to-morrow morning aboard H. I. J. M. S. Muroto.

The old flagship, Idzumo, lying at a pier a few yards from the Japanese Embassy, landed 50 bluejackets when the alarm spread following the shooting, and the men took post in the Embassy grounds. But they were recalled almost immediately.

The Consul-General, Mr. Wakisugi, is due from Nanking to-morrow morning.—United Press.

Grave Situation

Nanking, Sept. 23.

On receipt of the news of the outrage in Shanghai, in which unknown gunmen shot and killed one Japanese bluejacket and wounded two more last night, the Japanese Ambassador to China, Mr. Kawagoe, immediately threatened to leave Nanking.

In a brief statement, he said:

"There is a dark shadow over Sino-Japanese relations."

"Our demands will gain a new insistence with the latest outrage."

"We regret the Chinese Government lacks good faith."

Nanking, Sept. 24.

It is feared that Sino-Japanese relations are on the brink of a major crisis.

The Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Kawagoe, after a lengthy conference with high Japanese officials, declared to-day that the Hongkew incident showed that the Japanese Government would have to be applied to eradicate anti-Japanese activities in China.—Reuter.

He accused the Chinese Government of a lack of good faith towards Japan and said that it must bear the whole responsibility for the rampancy of anti-Japanese activities in China.—Reuter.

Shanghai, Sept. 24.

Japanese reinforcements, numbering 500, despatched from Japan in consequence of the Hongkew incident, have arrived.—Reuter.

OUTWARD CALM IN SHANGHAI

BUT JAPANESE ARE DEEPLY STIRRED MURDER GANG ABROAD?

Shanghai, Sept. 24.

A tense atmosphere prevailed in Hongkew, thickly populated by Japanese and Chinese, when Reuter's correspondent toured the area last night. The population was outwardly calm but all houses were blazing with lights.

The Japanese community is deeply stirred by this, the sixth murder of a Japanese national in China in three months. Japanese anxiously discussed the situation on street corners and doorsteps.

The Chinese, for the most part, kept indoors, but a few of the bolder spirits gathered in silent knots in the streets.

A grim touch was provided by the movements of khaki-clad marines, with gleaming bayonets, as they patrolled the streets at foot, in lorries, on motor cycles, and mounted machine-guns at strategic points.

Japanese bluejackets emptied the theatres at the height of the performances and searched the audiences for suspects.

A high Japanese official, when interviewed, expressed the opinion that the Nanyama, Kiyau, Yoshioka and "Taniato" murders, all within the last few weeks, were the work of one secret, patriotic society, with headquarters in Shanghai.—Reuter.

RADIO CONVENTION

Geneva, Sept. 23.

The Broadcasting Conference has adopted a draft Convention under which the Powers pledge themselves not to allow broadcasts constituting incitement to war or likely to disturb good international understanding by statements known to be false.—Reuter.

FACING SERIOUS SITUATION

Mr. Wu Teh-chen, Mayor of Greater Shanghai, who once again faces a serious situation following the killing of one and wounding of two Japanese naval seamen in the Hongkew district.

NEW ARMY LANDS IN PALESTINE

STRONG BRITISH UNITS ASSEMBLE

Jerusalem, Sept. 23.

Three thousand members of the Palestine Expeditionary Force landed at Haifa at dawn this morning.

The troopship, Laurence, carrying the Headquarters Staff, administrative officers and the Third Infantry Brigade, disembarked the first party, which proceeded to Jerusalem by two special trains, being preceded by an armoured tender with machine-guns, naval men on the footplate.

The rest of the detachment landed from the troopship, Dorsetshire, two hours later.

Supplies and equipment have been arriving at Haifa from Egypt continuously, and the town is a hive of industry, with tents being erected and encampments formed.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

THE "SCHARNHORST"

The N.D.L. s.s. "Scharnhorst" will arrive here on Friday at 7 o'clock in the morning. She will berth alongside No. 1 pier, Kowloon Wharf.—Reuter.

REDS APPROACHING DESPERATE CRISIS

ALCAZAR FINALLY CAPTURED

REDS MASTERS OF WHOLE FORTRESS

Madrid, Sept. 23.

Government forces announce the capture of the Alcazar of Toledo.

The final attack on the ruins was launched at dawn by 400 Government Storm Troops, who overpowered the weakened and weary insurgents still holding out in the refectory kitchens.

The Government forces are now masters of the entire fortress.

WORKERS TAKE OVER

London, Sept. 23.

The Great Southern Railway of Spain has announced in London that control of the organisation has been taken over by the local Railway Workers Council and that British officers of the company have been obliged to leave Spain, owing to the conditions prevailing.—Reuter.

ETHIOPIANS WILL REMAIN IN ASSEMBLY

Italians Talking of Quitting League MOMENTOUS DECISION TAKEN AT GENEVA

Geneva, Sept. 23.

It is reliably learned that the Credentials Committee of the League of Nations Assembly has decided that in the circumstances there can be no point in appealing to the Hague Court for a ruling regarding the validity of Ethiopia's credentials, since it is learned, in any case, that the Ethiopians would continue to sit in the Assembly. A ruling would merely complicate the issue. It is therefore believed the Credentials Committee will simply recommend that the delegation continue to sit and enjoy the rights of membership.

The decision of the Committee applies only to the present session and in no way prejudices future action. It was decided not to appeal to the Hague Court since no decision could be reached before the Assembly rose.—Reuter.

CONFIRMATION

Geneva, Sept. 23.

Leaving the meeting of the Credentials Committee this afternoon, the Greek delegate, M. Nicolas Politis, said the Ethiopians would enjoy the benefit of the doubt and continue to sit in Assembly. There would be no recourse to the Hague Court, he added.

Italian quarters are very excited at the decision, which amounts to validation of the Ethiopian credentials. They talk openly of leaving the League.—Reuter.

Report Adopted

The Assembly has adopted the report of the Credentials Committee by 39 votes to 4. Six countries abstained from voting.

Rebels Expect to Take Madrid by October 15

Gibraltar, Sept. 23.

The Lertist Government in Spain is approaching a desperate crisis. The Rightists are threatening at present to cut off the Toledo army from Madrid and thereafter to take the capital at their leisure.

Indications are that the Rightists are contemplating, first, a drive upon Toledo, thereafter isolating the Lertist besiegers of the Alcazar; secondly, defeating these besieged; thirdly, advancing east and north-east and severing the Madrid-Valencia railway, and simultaneously attacking Madrid from the west, north, north-east and south.

The Leftists' counter-plan appears to be, firstly, to capture the Alcazar; secondly, to safely remove the besiegers in case the attack fails; thirdly, to dispatch the Alcazar forces to attack the rebels as they advance on Madrid, and thereafter to join the main Leftist army on the Madrid highway; fourthly, to erect a living wall between the rebels and the capital.

Britain has suspended money order services to Spain and its possessions and Portugal has officially stated that the Rightists are fighting against Communism.—United Press.

Madrid On October 15

Seville, Sept. 23.

It is indicated that the Rightist armies expect to occupy Madrid by October 15 and that they intend to end the civil war entirely before the commencement of the fall weather. It is strongly intimated that the insurgents, after the completion of their Toledo drive, will approach Madrid slowly.

According to report, the Leftists are forming on the Madrid front with headquarters at Navalcarnero, only 20 miles southwest of the capital.

It is understood the Rightists intend to proceed cautiously after the expected capture of Toledo, using an elastic plan of operation and keeping the defenders of Madrid bottled. The Rightists on the left wing intend to proceed deliberately, for otherwise they would be susceptible to flank attacks. It is also intended to move all attacking columns simultaneously, preventing the Loyalists from massing in preponderant strength at any one point. Hence, it is anticipated that the communications of the next few days will show widely distributed attacks.—United Press.

Attacking Oviedo

Madrid, Sept. 23.

The War Ministry issued a communiqué to-day to the effect that the Loyalists' advance guards were again attacking the enemy outposts at Oviedo.

The Ministry claimed the Loyalists on the Aragon front had repulsed and severely punished a rebel column near Sertano.—United Press.

Tin Quotas Unchanged

NATIONS SHARING BOLIVIA ARREARS

London, Sept. 23.

The International Tin Committee, meeting in London to-day, decided that the production quota of the last quarter of 1935 would be unchanged at 90 per cent, 75 per cent, of which will be attributed to international quota and 15 per cent, to the arrears surrendered by Bolivia.

Bolivia will continue to export 75 per cent, of its standard tonnage.

The production of participating countries will similarly be reckoned on 75 per cent, of their international quota, plus their share of the Bolivian shortage.

Negotiations for the renewal of the Control Agreement continue with the Siamese delegation.

The next meeting of the Committee will be at the Hague, not later than one month from September 23.—Reuter.

Paris, Sept. 23.

It is generally felt that something is bound to happen very soon in view of a continuance of the flight of gold, owing to fears of devaluation of the franc.

It is understood that over nine million sterling's worth of gold has been exported in the past five days.

Officially, the position is still that the Government will hold off devaluation for some time yet, in order to see whether an international currency agreement results from the intense lobbying in Geneva, but if there are no results at Geneva, M. Leon Blum, the Premier, will take the plunge.—Reuter.

Refugee Ship Vanishes on Coast Voyage

Gibraltar, Sept. 23.

The Spanish steamer Genovava, 1,800 tons, with 400 persons aboard, most of them refugees, is missing.

The Genovava left Santander on September 2, bound for Valencia, and nothing has been heard of the ship since.

The Government has asked the International Red Cross to make enquiries in view of the possibility that the ship has been captured by insurgents.—Reuter.

ITALIANS ADVANCE ON GORE

Rome, Sept. 23.

Italian columns are advancing on Gore, where the independent Ethiopian Government is situated.

The forces include a column of Ethiopian irregulars in Italian employ, under the command of Ras Hailu and Ras Seyoum.—Reuter.

Can you make Consomme?

That is the test of a good cook

"MY dear, I really do believe I've struck a good cook at last!"
"Can she make clear soup?"
"Yes, her consomme is perfect."

Consomme, the classic test of a first-class cook.

When I was just married I had a bad complex about it. I considered myself a good cook, and yet, when it came to clarifying the contents of the stock-pot, I was helpless.

It sounded so terribly complicated in the cookery books. All that skimming and straining, and the actual clarifying process was never properly explained.

Then one autumn I went to stay with some friends in France. Since that happy visit clear soup has held no secrets for me. I can now clarify stock as easily as I can fry an egg, and how Mr. Valentine enjoys a cup of good consomme on a summer evening!

There are three basic consomes: hot, cold, and jellied. Any strong stock can be converted into the first variety, but the two latter need certain ingredients.

Stock For Cold Consomme

ONE needs 1lb. shin of beef, including pieces of sawn-up marrow bone.

Put the meat, cut in pieces, and the bones into a saucepan (or large earthenware casserole), add about three pints of water and bring to the boil slowly. When boiling add seasoning, two onions and two carrots.

These are the essential ingredients, but you will greatly improve the flavour of your soup if you add any or all of the following things:—

A bay-leaf, mixed herbs, either dried or fresh (namely, parsley, thyme, marjoram, tarragon), a clove, tells you how to get full marks...

a blade of mace, five or six peppercorns, mushroom stalks and peelings, tomato pulp and skin, a clove of garlic, legs, neck, and bones of a chicken.

Simmer the stock for three hours. Pour it into a bowl through a fine strainer (save the meat and bones for boiling up again) and put it in the larder.

The next day a solid layer of fat will have formed on top of the stock. You can remove this very easily with a spoon. The soup may now be submitted to the clarifying process described below.

Stock For Jellied Consomme

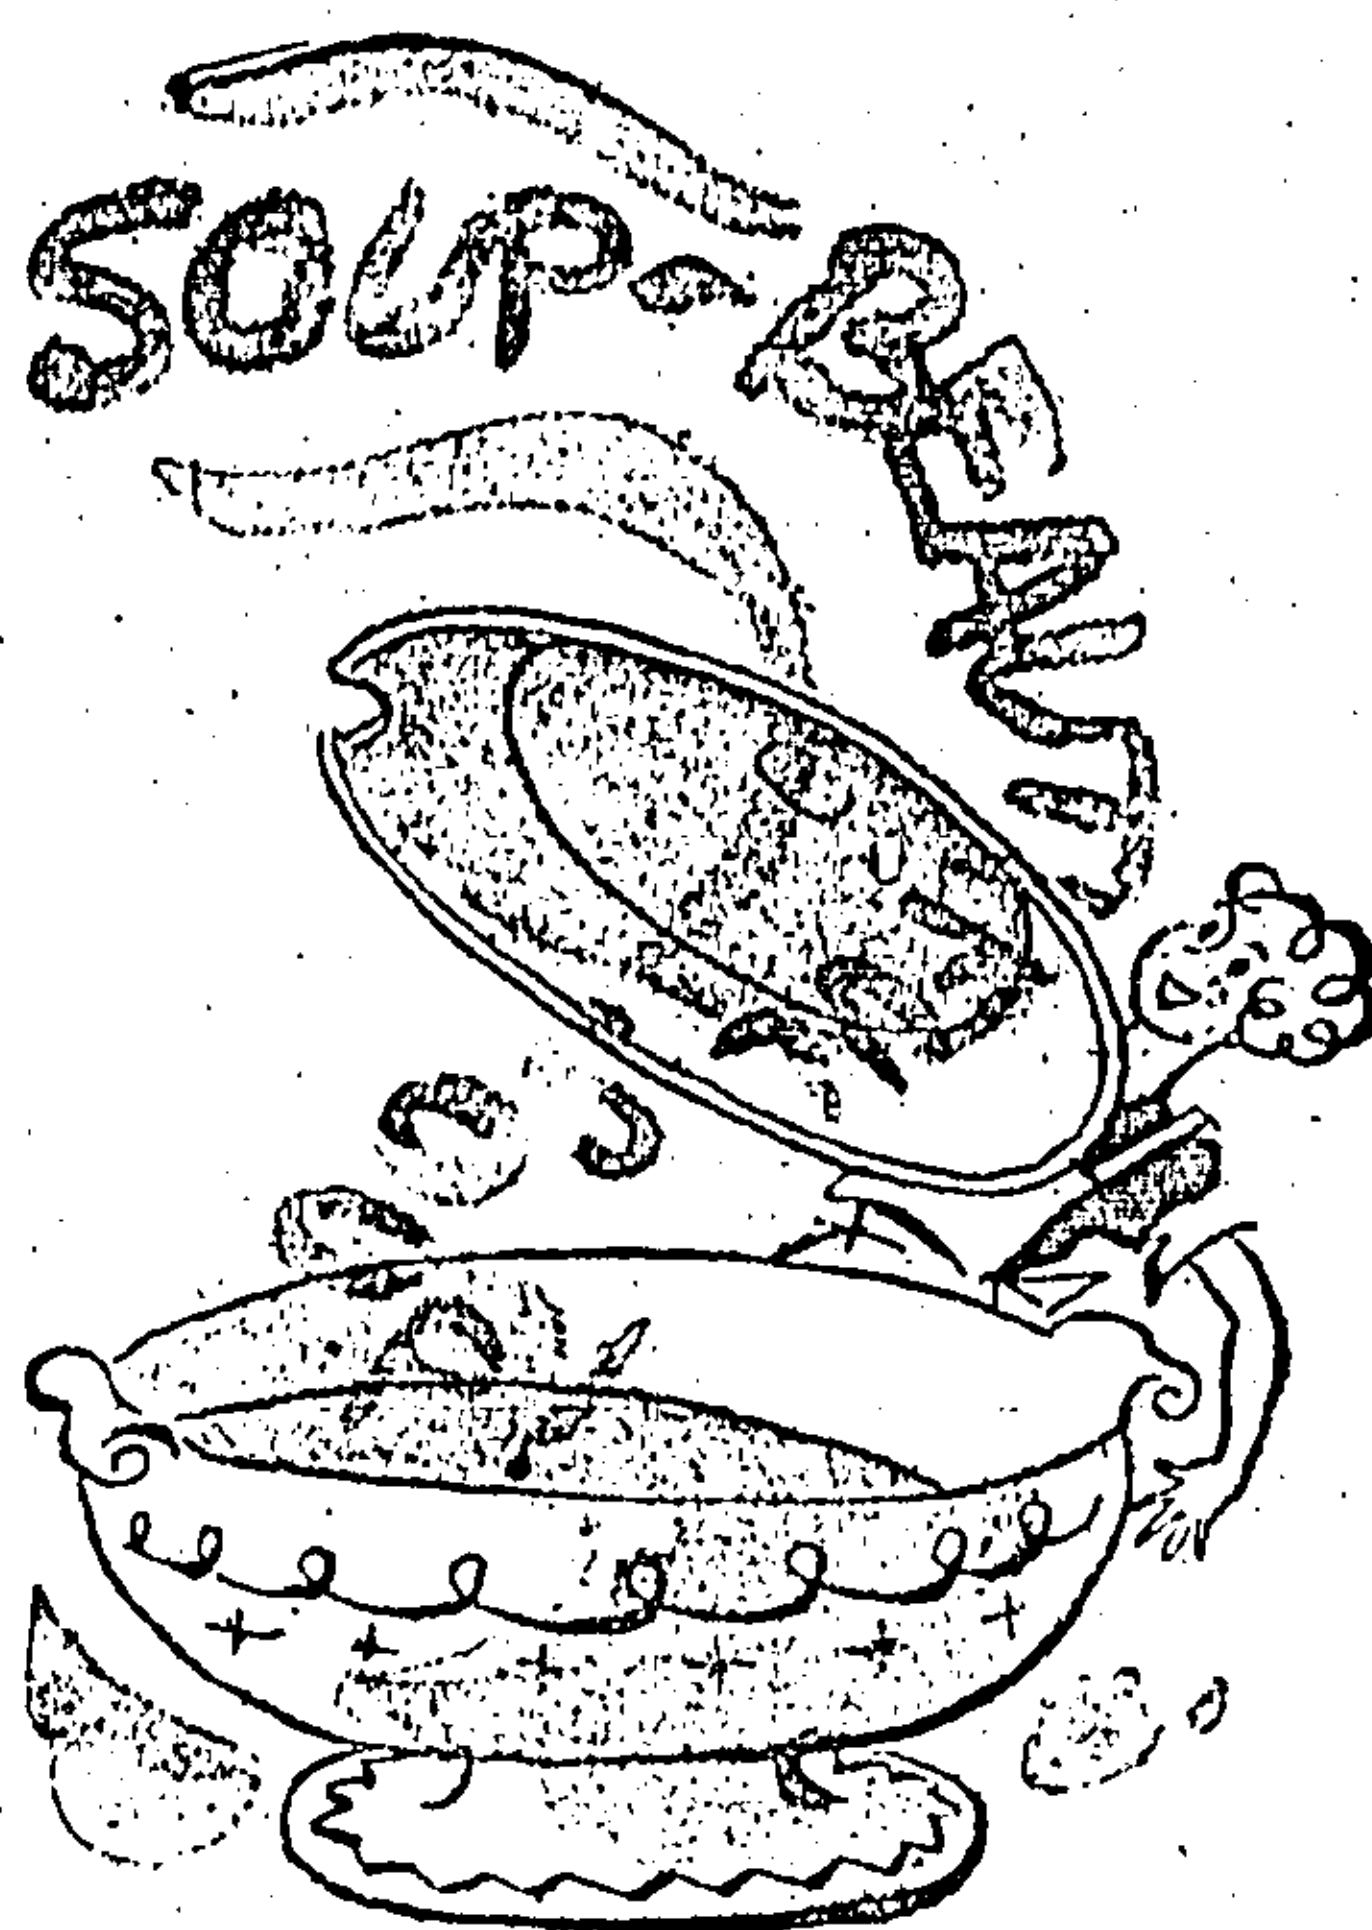

A KNUCKLE of veal, ½ lb. of beef, bring to the boil and add any of the above-mentioned necessities. Simmer for five hours.

You will notice that in these two recipes for stock I have said nothing about skimming. It is so much easier to over-skim than to under-skim that I never bother to skim my stock at all. To say that a stock which has not been skimmed will never get clear is untrue.

However, if you are keen on skimming never attempt to remove anything but the grey scum which rises when the stock first comes to boiling-point. If you do you will remove a lot of nourishment.

To Flavour Consomme

YOUR stock is quite cold, and you have removed the fat from the top. A pint is enough for three people.

Pour it into a saucepan, and, if it is the jellied variety, dissolve it for a few seconds on the stove. Now is the time to add the final flavouring.

The real fun of clear soup-making lies in the art of flavouring. You can combine different essences and juices with sherry, maitaka, or red wine (and why not try home-made wine one day?).

Alternatively, it is not necessary to use wine at all. A teaspoonful of sugar, a squeeze of lemon juice, a dash of tomato ketchup, a sprinkling of cayenne pepper, used separately or together these ingredients will impart a distinctive flavour to your consomme. And a stock which contains a good bunch of herbs or a little extra mace can easily stand on its own. You simply clarify it without adding any further flavouring at all.

Garnish For The Soup

THERE are different sorts of baked creams, cut into tiny stars and squares and circles, with which you can garnish consomme, but personally I think a little vermicelli or a few sliced vegetables are nicer than anything.

Always add your garnish after the clarifying process, or you will not get your soup clear. Vermicelli should be put in boiling water for five minutes before going into the consomme.

Use these vegetables: SUITABLE vegetables to add are diced and cooked carrots, cooked peas and blanched cucumber rind (put some rind which you have cut into thin strips in cold water with a pinch of salt, bring to the boil, and add to the consomme).

The famous jellied consomme known as "Julienne" simply has diced carrots, some peas and some chopped vermicelli put into it as soon as it has been clarified. When it gets cold the garnish sets nicely into the jelly.

This article is written at length and in detail to make it of practical use to the housewife. Cut it out, keep it in your recipe-book.

How To Make

Fruit Cheeses

YOU can stock your winter store thickens. Then weigh and take the cupboards from summer gardens. same weight in castor sugar.

Fruits have a double usefulness. Bring the pulp to the boil, add the sugar, and boil very rapidly, stirring carefully, for fifteen minutes. Put into slightly oiled moulds, cover and store in a cool place.

These cheeses can be eaten with bread, or served with custard to make wintry pudding time very summery indeed.

While plums make lovely cheeses, many midsummer fruits lack sufficient "body." Added apples solve this difficulty and improve the flavour.

A standard recipe is to stir sieved fruit pulp over a slow fire till it

Autumn Fashions Go Royalist

By ZOE FARMER

YOU finish up summer with a coat of tan.

That is about all you'll have that is in fashion (and even that won't last long).

The hustle for autumn clothes has already started. Those little coloured jackets over flowered dresses, openwork sandals, little flat crowns with spreading sunshade brims, pale colours—for dresses and coats—are all "out."

Even your hairdressing, with that cluster of curls on your neck, is finished. Instead, hair is shorter and close to the head.

High Hat

Hats are as high-crowned as you can bear. Some even—getting us used to the idea for next year—are shaped just like crowns, in black velvet, with ermine tails.

Dresses are two inches shorter—and flaring. Tweed, that most conservative material, is changing its style to look mannish with well pronounced shoulders, slightly waisted on straight-hanging coats.

To replace flowers, the newest ornaments for belts, caps, buttons, hats, are all racing royalist. Jackets are shaped like heralds' coats—sleeveless and slipping over the head.

The topical colours are royal—purples, crimson, gold, silver, blue. Yes, gold is even used on day clothes. Lame belts and collars to black dresses.

Velvet Favourite

In character, the favoured stuff is velvet—of all kinds. Velvetens for day, in black. Velvet striped with shiny satin (a mixed weave) for afternoon dresses. Chiffon velvet, ribbed like corduroy or with metallic flints, for evening.

Fur is to be worn almost everywhere, except around the neck. Down coat fronts as an inset panel so that it looks as though you have a fur coat under your cloth one—on sleeves, to make lapels... or waistcoats, or as epaulettes.

Printed materials are also coming out with Coronation colourings. The way things are at present, I should think we'll all be dressed like little kings by the day King Edward is crowned.

Tips about SALAD DRESSINGS

A TABLESPOONFUL of boiling water, added to mayonnaise when it is mixed, will keep it from curdling. It is sometimes done for no accountable reason.

A very light and fluffy mayonnaise is made by adding the stiffly whipped egg-white when the dressing is mixed.

A plain salad is vastly improved by this dressing. Add to a gill of mayonnaise half a teaspoonful of piquante sauce, a tablespoonful of tomato catsup, two teaspoonfuls of walnut catsup, and half a teaspoonful of ground cloves.

The American "Thousand Island" dressing is made by adding chopped olives, chopped pimento, and tomato catsup to mayonnaise. When obtainable, chopped green pepper gives a pleasant tang.

Wife "Murdered By Post"

Paris, September 15.

A GRIM story of "murder-by-post" is believed to lie behind the sudden death by poisoning of pretty Mme. Roger Fauveau, aged 27, wife of an officer in the Paris fire brigade, while convalescing after an illness at a village near Limoges.

Last night, the police say, Mme. Fauveau received a parcel of medicine from her husband and a note which read:

"Darling, here are the medicines I promised you. You will see there are several different things, but I think the blue powder will suit you best. Take as per instructions given by Michel. My love to you."

She took the powder with a glass of water, suddenly called for help, and was dead before anyone could reach her. Her body turned a violet colour.

CERTAIN CURES

The powder consisted of copper nitrate and strychnine. Arrested in Paris, the husband denied that he had deliberately sent his wife poison, saying, "I had the powder recommended to me by a man named Michel, who was just a café acquaintance."

"I sent her the sachets of powder for sleeplessness, and other medicines for her bad circulation. They were described to me as being certain cures."

An exhaustive search is being made for "Michel" among quack doctors in Paris.

Mothers' Self-sacrifice Leads To Disease

Dr. F. Lawrence Smith, in a report to Merton and Morden Council, says: "In the poorer homes, if economics have to be made, it is the mother who 'does without,' and it would not be surprising to find that in many cases the mother's self-sacrifice is responsible for dental disease."

"Often women coming to the clinics or centres say that they have been waiting for a long time to have dental treatment, but could not afford it."

"Apart from charitable organisations or public assistance, says Dr. Smith, most mothers have no facilities for securing attention to their teeth at fees which they can afford."

"STAY YOUR HAND UNTIL AUTUMN—STRIKE THEN"

A MAZING revelations of how France was saved from a Red revolution and civil war two months ago were published recently in the London Sunday Dispatch from, according to that newspaper, reliable source.

The evening of June 11 had been chosen for the Communist coup that was to be the prelude to the establishment of a Red dictatorship.

At the eleventh hour the French Communist leaders received urgent instructions from Moscow. Reports received by the Komintern from its agents in France raised doubts as to the outcome of the revolution, and Moscow counselled delay till the autumn.

How It Feels To Be Televised

LIKE INSECT UNDER MICROSCOPE

COMPLEX APPARATUS OF £100,000 STATION

By L. MARSLAND GANDER

I was televised recently at the B.B.C.'s new Alexandra Palace station. As I sat in the glare of a battery of lights, which beat on me like the tropical sun, my face was transmitted from one room to another.

Television doubles the terrors of the sound studio. The sitter feels like an insect under a microscope. He has no idea whether his picture is being received, and, if so, what impression it is creating.

The television camera points at him silently and remorselessly.

This experience occurred during a tour of the first station in the world built to give a public television service. It is more than twice as powerful as any other television station and is destined to be four times as powerful. The cost is estimated at £100,000.

On the ground floor are two large transmitting halls, one equipped with Baird and the other with Marconi-E.M.I. apparatus. Above are duplicate rooms used as studios for each system.

The complexity of the equipment is enormous. Few understand its inner mysteries, and the B.B.C. engineers are being trained by the expert staff of the two television companies.

VALVE COOLING PLANT

I wandered through a maze of grey and silver panels. In the Marconi-E.M.I. transmitting hall there is a sinister-looking piece of equipment in a black cage, called a mercury arc rectifier. The inside is like a cave suffused with violet light and when the apparatus is switched on and off a strange moan is heard through the hall.

Signals from the studio overhead are magnified a million times. Altogether 562 valves are used for the Marconi system alone.

Elaborate water-cooling plant for the valves is a feature of the Baird system. When the temperature rises above danger point there is a system which automatically shuts down the station.

Two 60 kilowatt valves, locked up like valuables in a safe deposit, can be parted and reassembled in half an hour for the fitting of spare parts. In all the Marconi-E.M.I. transmissions the Emitron camera, which picks up the scene direct, will be used. In the Baird studio, however, intermediate film gear has been installed. This method involves use of an ordinary cinematograph camera. The film is developed, fixed, washed and dried and passed through the transmitter. Baird's also has a "spotlight" studio. Here the person to be televised sits in semi-darkness. A spot of light traces 6,000 lines over every part of the subject in one second.

BROADCAST OF FILMS

Apart from direct televising, both systems will broadcast films, and there is a miniature cinema theatre for the use of the producers.

Pictures demonstrated to me recently on viewing panels, which will be used by the control engineers, were most impressive. They were even more distinct than those I have been receiving at home, which have been described exclusively in The Daily Telegraph.

These pictures were not, of course, broadcast but were merely relayed from one room to another. Seen in this way, even a picturesque outdoor view of the Palace grounds, faintly blurred on my home screen, was clear-cut. A close-up picture from the spotlight studio of Miss Rita Grant was particularly effective. The station is complete with offices, dressing-rooms, a restaurant, and a concrete arena outside for open-air broadcasts.

Nicholas Schwernik, manager of the International of Red Syndicates, reported to Moscow headquarters the following adverse factors:

The French army was too well disciplined and time was needed for Bolshevik propaganda to spread.

Army officers would generally be obeyed by their men.

The provinces had not been adequately canvassed by Red emissaries, and agricultural workers were mostly distrustful of them.

SCENES

After feverish meetings in secret, the French Communist leaders gradually agreed to stay their hand, but they resolved to intensify their propaganda during the parliamentary recess, and wait for the propitious moment to make their stroke in the autumn.

News of the Reds' intention to seize power reached members of the Blum Government when the stay-in strikes were at their worst, and there were dramatic scenes in the salons of the Ministries.

M. Lohas, Minister of Labour, who was one of the first to learn of the Red plot, urged the Premier to take prompt steps to foil the Communists. It is said he even threatened to inform the Army High Command himself.

The way for the Red revolution had been skillfully prepared by Moscow's paid agitators.

DEFYING THE PREMIER

Hopes of success ran so high in the Red camp that on the night of June 9, at a meeting of 30,000 followers in the Palais des Sports, Maurice Thorez, leader of the French Communists, boasted that his party would soon be in power.

M. Blum, the Premier, was on the platform, yet Thorez declared: "Although we support the new Popular Front Government we have nothing in common with it, and soon we shall be the masters of the country."

His words were hailed with frenzy. Men screamed their approval, and women wept with joy.

Turks To Ban Gangster Films

She Knew 1870—Clemenceau Invited Her to See Versailles Signing

Paris, Sept. 20. MME. JULIETTE LAMBERT ADAM died this morning at the Chateau de Lagnelles, aged 100.

Patroness of French poets and novelists, and a notable journalist herself, she attained the rare distinction of having a Paris street named after her during her lifetime.

To-day the Rue Juliette Lambert, as it is called, commemorates a great French patriot who saw, and felt with extreme bitterness, the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 and yet was spared to see retribution in the downfall of Germany in 1918.

The happiest day in her full life was, perhaps, in July 1919, when, remembering 1870, Clemenceau, remembering 1870, remembered that Mme. Adam had known it, too, and accordingly sent a

EUROPE TO JAVA BY CANOE

BOAT SUNK IN ARABIAN SEA

THE Dutch brothers Gerrit and Nicolas Entrop, of Haarlem, have arrived at Allahabad by canoe en route to Sourabaya.

They are following the Dutch air mail route as nearly as possible and hope to establish a record.

Similar attempts have been made before but no traveller has completed the journey.

FIERCE MONSOON

They left Haarlem, in April, 1935, and hope to complete the journey in ten months, taking just over two years. Unfortunately a part of the voyage was accomplished by steamer and train owing to refusal of permission to allow them to travel by sea from Constantinople, down the coast of Asia Minor. Also because of the bad weather in the Arabian Sea and fierce monsoon condition along the west coast of India.

The brothers started from Haarlem, travelling up the Rhine, down the Danube through the Black Sea to Constantinople, then by steamer to Beirut and overland to Baghdad, canoeing down the Tigris to the Persian Gulf.

ALL EQUIPMENT LOST

A misfortune overtook them in the Arabian Sea. The canoe capsized one night in a storm, and all equipment was lost. Swimming two miles to the shore, the men landed near Chahbar from where they took steamer for Karachi. At Karachi new equipment and a 16-ft. collapsible canoe was bought. The journey was then continued. Travelling down the Jumna, they have arrived at Allahabad.

The brothers spent all day at the aerodrome awaiting the Dutch air mail. They will shortly leave by the Ganges for Calcutta from where their route lies along the Arakan-Malayan coast to Singapore and Java.

special official car to take her to Versailles and witness with him the signing of the Peace Treaty.

HER LITERARY FRIENDS

Juliette Lambert was brought up in a world which exists no longer save in the written word. In the salon of the Comtesse d'Agout she was on terms of intimacy with such men as the poet Lamartine, an outstanding figure in finance and politics, she collected round her a coterie of people who managed to keep its glamour right through the century, and this in spite of political and other upheavals.—Reuter.

NEW YORK RECOVERS

PHILLIES BEATEN BY SLIM MARGIN
CARDINALS INACTIVE

New York, Sept. 23. Teams whose only hope for a chance at the National League pennant is that New York Giants shall be consistently beaten in their remaining games, were shocked when the Giants hit fifteen times against Philadelphia to-day and scored a five to four victory. The Phillies had won a double-header from the leaders yesterday, but eight hits, including a homer by Camilli, were not enough to match the Giants' pace.

Pittsburgh beat Chicago, seven to six, thus allowing the St. Louis Cardinals, whose game with Cincinnati was postponed, to go a notch higher in the standing. Brooklyn defeated Boston eight to six.

Cleveland whipped the Chicago White Sox in the American League, seventeen to two, Tuesday hitting a home run in the first part of a double-header. But Chicago won the night-cap, eight to four. Appling pounded the ball out of the park.

New York won from Philadelphia, twelve to five, each having thirteen hits. Selkirk homered. St. Louis Browns ran all around Detroit, winning by ten to one, Boll contributing a circuit clout. Washington took Boston into camp with a score of three to two.

M. Mota, Swiss delegate, announced that his Government must abstain from voting as the question of the validity of the credentials of the Ethiopian delegates still existed and was grave in its political consequences.

Great Britain, France, the Scandinavian countries, members of the Little Entente, the Balkan Entente nations and the British Dominions all voted "Yes," to the Committee's recommendation. The "No" votes were from Hungary, Austria, Albania and Ecuador. Abstentions were Bulgaria, Chile, Siam, Switzerland, Portugal and Venezuela.—Reuter.

Italians May Quit

Rome, Sept. 23. Italians are frankly astonished at the decision of the Credentials Committee of the League of Nations to submit to the Hague Court of International Justice the problem of Ethiopia's right of representation in the League Assembly. This move means the indefinite postponement of Italy's return to the League and in the view of many Italians may mean Signor Benito Mussolini may decide his country is to leave the League altogether.

The Committee's action also makes participation of Italy in the proposed Locarno Treaty signatories talks more than doubtful. The decision to leave the League, however, if it is taken, would only be announced after the cabinet is discussed by the Cabinet, which does not meet until October 10.—Reuter.

Unofficial Fears

Rome, Sept. 23. It is unofficially predicted here that Italy will quit the League of Nations due to Geneva's decision in the Ethiopian issue. However, this is not confirmable in official circles, where it is merely stated that the Geneva developments have created "a difficult situation."

"Diplomats believe that instead of formally quitting the League, Italy might refrain from attending meetings until the Ethiopian question is settled. It is believed that Signor Mussolini has no wish to burn his bridges leaving Italy definitely isolated with Germany."

All quarters are agreed that event have virtually precluded an early Locarno conference.—United Press.

PASSES AWAY IN ENGLAND

The death of Mr. James Punccheon on September 23 at the age of 54, is announced from Eastbourne, where he had been living in retirement since he left Hongkong in 1933.

The late Mr. Punccheon will be remembered by many old hands as a ballroomer at the Kowloon Docks and the oldest of the retired and keenest players of the Kowloon Dock Recreation Club. He was a member of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club. He came out to Hongkong many years ago to join the Kowloon Docks but later transferred to the New Engineering Company at Shanghai, from which he retired and went home about 1914. His wife died at home, and Mr. Punccheon returned here in 1922 to renew his association with the Kowloon Docks where he remained to the end of his stay in the colony.

He leaves one son and one daughter in England; one son, Mr. George Punccheon, who is in Jardine, Matheson's at Shanghai, and one daughter, who is the wife of Mr. R. Miller of Messrs Butterfield & Swire. Much sympathy will be felt for the relatives in their bereavement.

U.S. Rejects China Income Tax Scheme

WOULD VIOLATE OLD "EXTRALITY" PACT

Washington, Sept. 23. The United States Government has refused to submit to the proposed application of an income tax on foreigners resident in China.

It has informed Nanking through the Embassy that the proposal, as far as the United States is concerned, would violate the United States' extraterritorial rights in the Chinese republic.—Reuter.

France has already declined to accept the Nanking Government's suggestion for an income tax levy on French subjects resident in China.

Final Tribute To Airman

Liverpool, Sept. 23. The remains of the late Mr. T. Campbell Black, recently killed in an aerodrome mishap, were cremated here this afternoon.

A large crowd, including brother officers and members of the theatrical profession, attended the service.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

14 KILLED IN COLLISION

FRENCH EXPRESS TRAIN TRAGEDY

Paris, Sept. 23. Fourteen people were killed and 25 injured when an express from Bordeaux was telescoped by a local train near Lourdes.

ANGLO-ITALIAN TRADE TALKS

DELEGATES VISITING IN ROME

London, Sept. 22. In the House of Commons on July 30, the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Walter Hume, explained the reasons for which negotiations for the resumption of Anglo-Italian trade, following the lifting of sanctions, had had to be suspended.

The two Governments, however, did not altogether lose touch during the interval on the question of a commercial agreement, and to-day the Board of Trade announced that arrangements had been made for resumption of negotiations regarding trade and payments, and delegates have proceeded to Rome for this purpose.—British Wireless.

FIRE ABOARD LINER

OUTWARD BOUND FROM MELBOURNE

London, Sept. 23. Fire broke out to-day in the hold of the 14,082-ton Orient liner, Ormorde, outward bound from Melbourne.

A statement issued in London by the Company to-night says that as a strong wind was blowing at the time, Captain Thomas thought it advisable to anchor in Twyford Bay, 250 miles south of Sydney, in order to deal with the fire before proceeding on the voyage. His latest report states that the fire is confined to one section of the hold and is under control, and there is no cause for anxiety.—British Wireless.

NEW INDIAN GOVERNORSHIPS

THREE APPOINTMENTS MADE

London, Sept. 23. The King has approved the following appointments to Governorships in Indian Provinces: Bihar.—Mr. M. G. Hallett to succeed Sir J. D. Sifton. Assam.—Sir R. N. Reid to succeed Sir Michael Keane.

North-West Frontier Province.—Sir George Cunningham to succeed Sir Ralph Griffin.

These changes will take effect in the spring of next year.—British Wireless.

LORD SEMPLL'S FLIGHT

Maclean Brand Stomach Powder "Worked Wonders"

Gastric trouble is no respecter of persons; it strikes equally at high and low, rich and poor. But Maclean Brand Stomach Powder gives equal benefit to all, regardless of their rank or station in life. Read this letter:

"I have suffered from gastric trouble for quite twenty years on and off," writes Mrs. L., a nurse, "having been in hospital many times for treatment, but after leaving hospital I was bound to keep strictly to milk diet, which kept me in rather a weak state—but now, since taking Maclean Brand Stomach Powder I can eat quite a lot of food that I dared not touch before."

"I am mostly nursing, and shall be pleased to recommend your powder to any sufferer who may come under my care in the future."

Remember this: It was the "signature" brand that cured Mrs. L.—the powder with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle. That's the one you want, in bottles in cartons, never sold loose. Also in tablet form. If any difficulty in obtaining write to:—Banker & Co., Ltd., P. O. Box 538, Hong Kong.

NO SCUTTling

There can be no questioning the point that Britain's prestige suffered a heavy blow when, as champion of collective pressure on Italy, she failed to prevent or stop the Italo-Ethiopian war. Had she been able to secure the support which she had every reason to hope for, Ethiopia would probably never have fallen into Italian hands, and the League of Nations would not have been left in the difficult position in which it finds itself to-day, with Ethiopia still claiming a right sovereignty over its own territory. To that extent, the blame for inaction does not lie wholly at Britain's door. It is true that Britain might have taken on Italy single-handed, but such a step might easily have provoked a world war. Matters would have been different had united pressure been brought by League members on Italy, the aggressor. Since the Italian occupation of Ethiopia, there have been suggestions in certain quarters that Britain has lost grip of the Mediterranean situation—that, in fact, she intends to adopt a policy involving scuttling from her base at Malta. The growth of the Italian air arm has undoubtedly exposed this British Colony to danger, situate as it is within short flying distance of the Italian aerodromes. But Sir Samuel Hoare, who has been on a tour in the Mediterranean, categorically declares that Britain has no intention of abandoning her position; that, on the contrary, she intends to face the new situation in a manner which will make the position secure for the future. This does not involve any new policy—it merely amounts to a determination to preserve our overseas communications. The necessity for action along these lines is made all the more imperative by reason of the possibility that the insurgents may win in Spain and Fascist control be secured over that country. In such an event, with the further possibility of Portugal definitely linking up with the Fascist combination, Gibraltar's position might easily become affected. Italy's hold over Ethiopia is also a factor in the changed situation. Sir Samuel Hoare says the Italo-Ethiopian war may have been worth while in that it has caused Britain to concentrate her attention on the Mediterranean with a view to remedying past deficiencies. The inference is that there has been neglect in the past. It is, however, reassuring to know that there is now every intention of making amends and that Britain, so far from yielding her position in the Mediterranean, is resolved to re-enforce her authority in this vitally important region.

"THERE IS A BATTLE AND MALAGA is BURNING"

In this vivid story the wife of a British novelist living in a village outside Malaga relates how the war broke round their ears. "We love Spain," she says, "and we do not want to abandon the country."

It is not every day, fortunately, that we wake up in the middle of a Civil War, but that was our experience in our village near Malaga.

Marla, the housekeeper, woke us, saying: "There is a battle and Malaga is burning." From our hill we could see Malaga in the distance like a toy city, but that morning it was enveloped in a pall of smoke.

We learned that there had been a rising of the Right-Military elements, and a great deal of shooting during the night. The Calle Larios had been fired partly to stop sniping from the roofs, partly in revenge by people from the poor quarters of the city; a rich suburb by Malaga, the Limonas had been almost completely burned.

A few English people and many Spaniards who were caught in the Calle Larios when the fighting began had a truly hideous night. An intense fire from machine guns and rifles raked the streets and came in at the windows.

MEANWHILE in our village—it is large by English standards, containing several thousand people—the day became very exciting. All the cars had been confiscated and, painted with the initials V.G.T., C.N.T. or F.A.I., were rushing about bristling with arms. Buses went by with a pistol projecting from every window.

Everyone was in high spirits and very friendly. They waved their pistols at the passer-by in the most amiable and disconcerting way. There were a great many accidents. Our cook's "navio," or young man, was killed like this almost at our door.

That afternoon bands of armed youths came searching the houses for arms. At first they refused to search our house as they knew us and we were English, but later a band which did not know us did come in. I happened to be alone in the house with the servants and went to the door myself. They entered with their guns held forward as they were boarding a pirate. Their youthful leader was armed with a toy sword which particularly pleased me.

ALTHOUGH I was polite to them, I received them coldly. They began their search in my bedroom, where the poor young leader, very embarrassed, groped about among my silk underclothes. The next drawer he opened happened to be full of my little girl's headless dolls. He completed his confusion, and he hurriedly abandoned the search. By that time we were all on excellent terms, and as they left we

That day we were horrified to hear that a friend of ours, a farmer, who had been under a sort of detention in his own house, was being taken off to Malaga by a crowd against the will of the village. This, we thought, would probably mean his being murdered on the way. My husband rushed off down the street with the intention of dominating a mob armed not only with pistols and rifles, but with a machine-gun, with which they were menacing the protesting village Syndicalists.

It turned out that they wanted not our friend, but a carabinero, an ugly customer who had helped to cook evidence on various occasions, to secure convictions, but even him the village refused to give up, and the leaders of the crowd were obliged to go off without their victim. The village said he was an "hijo del Pueblo," a son of the village, and no hijo del Pueblo is going to be taken off to Malaga to be murdered if they can help it.

The village knows their deeds, and can judge them. Malaga has nothing to do with the matter.

This is very typical of Spain where every village is as strongly aware of itself as an entity as a Greek City State.

As night came on a sinister rumour began to run about the village. "The Tercios are coming! The Tercios are coming." There was a sort of horror upon the village.

THE Tercios are the only regular troops Spain has and are always kept in Morocco. They consist of 10,000 of the Legion and 5,000 Moorish troops. They are splendid soldiers, but have a bad name for ruthlessness, and are said to have slaughtered people indiscriminately in Oviedo.

Most of the Tercios, however, had been unable to cross to Spain

as the sailors remained loyal to the Government and those that had crossed were far away, in Seville and near Gibraltar.

After the first day or two Malaga gradually became quiet. The lorries and cars with their amateur soldiers continued to rush by, but their number gradually decreased. The little local trains began to run again and we went into Malaga, first to see the ruins and then to draw money from the bank, and shop.

The town had an extremely ominous appearance. Of the few people in the streets most were young workmen. The ruins in the Calle Larios were still smoking and they were clearing the wreckage from the street.

The second time we went to Malaga the city had resumed its normal life. There were not many people about, but women were shopping and the markets and shops and banks were all open.

The post goes out and comes in, but only in the Province of Malaga; the little trains run, but they only run to the nearby villages. The only news, except the wild village rumours, comes over the radio and is hopelessly conflicting. La Pasionaria, a female Revolutionary, talks in a strange, shrieking, ecstatic voice, the sound of which is somehow extremely poetic. Madrid talks seriously, as a Government should. The President, Azana made a really fine speech one mid-night, reserved, noble, and from the heart.

The Right leader in Seville, General Queipo de Llano, talks in the most extraordinary manner. He pours out a stream of information about the military situation, makes bad jokes in the worst taste, and insults personal enemies of whom no one has ever heard. He threatens to shoot all the soldiers, Civil Guards and Guardia de Asaltos who have remained faithful to their allegiance to the Government, as traitors! When things had begun to be quiet in the district, and people were beginning to work in the fields again, we woke one morning before dawn with loud, strange sounds in our ears.

A right aeroplane had come over and was dropping incendiary bombs on the Malaga flying-field a few miles away. After the bombing was over we went out on the balcony to see if any damage had been done.

ARE YOU HAPPY?

HEALTH and happiness—not infrequently, one of them exists when the other is absent.

I have in the course of my professional life come into contact with hundreds of very happy people, but by no means could be spoken of as healthy.

Also, I have known—and some of my most intimate friends have been among the number—very many men and women in the pink of health, yet as far from embodying happiness as could be the most painfully afflicted victim of illness.

There is an old toast that runs, "Health, Wealth, and Happiness!" I imagine that few are foolish enough to assume that the possession of ten thousand pounds, or even of one thousand pounds, a year brings happiness with it, or is essential to happiness. One of the most unhappy men with whom I have ever come into personal touch had no nameable physical ailment, and had an annual income of anything between fifty and sixty thousand a year.

INJURED PRIDE

One of the happiest men I know is a kindly-dispositioned old bachelor, whose income oscillates between nineteen shillings and twenty-one shillings a week.

Of course, the bearing of income on happiness becomes more real and more immediate when, instead of being a bachelor, with only oneself to cater for, one has a wife and three or four children. For people thus placed, there is a money minimum below which happiness is not so easy of attainment.

Three times out of four, however, the dissatisfaction associated with a small but secure income is due far more to injured pride than to any shortage of the material needs of life or of physical health.

But we must admit that the economic difficulties may be great,

True Health Not Essential to Make Life a Pleasure

By Dr HARRY ROBERTS

even where the income is assured. The earning of that small income more often than not involves living in or close to some large town. Rents are apt to be large in relation to total wages or salary.

A cultivated young woman patient told me, in the course of a consultation, that she and her husband, with an income of less than three hundred a year, were compelled to live in a district in which the cheapest small flat available cost them ninety pounds a year.

She was eager to have a child or children of her own, yet dare not if justice were to be done to those for whom the parents would have made themselves responsible.

THE PRIME CONDITIONS

What, then, are the prime conditions of happiness? A certain minimum of health and a variable minimum of wealth and economic security are, for most of us, among the necessary foundations of a happy life. These things do not of themselves ensure happiness; they but clear the way of obstacles. More freedom from care is possible on a little more foundation than this. But freedom from care is not happiness.

In the first century of the Christian era lived a Greek slave called Epictetus. Here are one or two of his sayings:

"Men are disturbed, not by things, but by the principles and notions which they form concerning things."

"Remember that you are an actor in a drama, of such a kind as the author pleases to make it. If short, of a short one; if long, of a long one. If it be his pleasure you should act a poor man, a cripple, a governor, or a private person, see that you act it naturally. For this is your business, to act well the character assigned to you; to choose it is another's."

These quotations give some idea of intelligent modesty—a very different thing from servility or a sense of inferiority. When one has reached this plateau of philosophy, and takes it for granted that we are what we are and could not have been otherwise; there is nothing to be ashamed of or concealed about in being what we are and in being circumstanced as we are; the feeling of safety, of standing on firm ground, is almost astounding in its comfort. That is the real basis on which happiness may be built.

THE BASIS OF ALL

Happiness itself is a manifestation of faith, of confidence. Everyone who sets out to scale heights which he is convinced are within his competence is likely to be happy; everyone who is in love, believing, absolutely in the miracle embodied in his beloved, and in his power to appreciate that miracle; as well as those who both feel the mystery of the phenomenal universe and are convinced that there is a meaning and a beneficial purpose behind it; all these are likely, in proportion to their faith, to win the prize of real happiness.

I am not a member of any Christian church, but I believe that the philosophy, and the hints for the conduct of human life, expressed in the recorded sayings of Jesus, are about the most important contributions that have yet been made to the science on which a sound art of happiness must be based.

WE saw, to our horror, clouds of smoke apparently pouring from the house of some Spanish friends who lived next to the aviation field. We dressed rapidly, and with our gardener, Antonio, rushed off to help them. As we approached near the house we saw that it was uninjured.

The clouds of smoke were rising from two incendiary bombs which had fallen within 30 yards of the house and set light to the dry grass. Our friends were up and dressed, and we urged them to abandon their house and come to us, which they subsequently did.

That night the lower floor of our house was crowded with poor villagers who were terrified of bombs coming through the roofs of their homes, and also of the Moors coming in the night and cutting off their heads.

The next morning there was some lively bombardment of the Spanish fleet in the harbour. Almost all the English have gone, and the few that remain are urged by the Consul to go now.

BUT we shall remain because we have responsibilities here; Spanish friends of all classes and political opinions to protect if we can.

Our servants, old friends whom we brought down from the Sierra Nevada with us, to take care of, and our beautiful old house and large library to save if possible.

We have the friendship of the village, and fighting here is unlikely. We love Spain, and though we can do nothing for her we do not want to abandon the country, where we have lived so peaceably and happily, in her critical and desperate hour.

1916 CRUISER FOR EAST

ON CHINA STATION
H.M.S. DANAE AND
CUMBERLAND

Important changes in the British naval forces in the Far East will take place during the next two months.

Admiral Sir Charles Little, Commander-in-Chief of the China Station, will transfer his flag from H.M.S. Kent to H.M.S. Cumberland which has been rebuilt and modernised since she was in the Far East a year ago.

H.M.S. Danae, a wartime cruiser of the "D" class (4,350 tons) left England recently to replace the Kent. The Danae will reach Hongkong next month.

The Danae was ordered in 1916 and was completed three or four months before the Armistice.

REFITTED SIX YEARS AGO
She is fitted as a flagship, and carries a complement of about 450 men.

Six years ago, the Danae, together with the Dohli and Dragon, sister ships, was refitted. Her guns include six 6-inch, three 4-inch, four three-pounders, two two-pounders, two machine-guns, eight Lewis guns, and well as torpedo tubes.

RESERVE FLEET SHIP
H.M.S. Cumberland has also left for Hongkong. When the Kent returns to England large repairs will be undertaken.

The Danae has been attached to the reserve fleet at Devonport, her home port. She was recommissioned with a reserve crew last November. In Hongkong she will be commanded by Captain L. E. H. Maund who has been attached to the Plans Division of the Admiralty.

WEDDING SET FOR DECEMBER

THE "TELEGRAPH" LEARNS FROM LONDON SOURCES THAT PRINCESS JULIANA, THE HEIRESS TO THE THRONE OF THE NETHERLANDS, AND PRINCE BERNARD ZUR LIPPE BIESTERFELD, WHOM SHE WILL MARRY SHORTLY, WILL ALMOST CERTAINLY VISIT HONGKONG AND THE FAR EAST ON HER HONEYMOON.

Contrary to first reports, Princess Juliana will be married before the end of the year.

It is learned in court circles in the Hague that the marriage will take place during the second half of December.

Arrangements for the wedding are now being made.

It is stated that Princess Juliana and her consort will spend the first part of their honeymoon in Europe and afterwards visit the Far East.

They are expected to come East during January and February.

Their first destination will be the Netherlands East Indies, via Singapore. From there they will proceed to Manila, Hongkong and Shanghai.

It is improbable that the Royal couple will stay in Hongkong for more than a day, merely passing through this Colony.

The route to be followed will be substantially the same as that taken by King Leopold of the Belgians and his wife, the late Queen Astrid, when they visited this Colony in 1933, shortly before King Leopold's accession to the throne.

Princess Juliana is literally the last descendant of the famous House of Orange Nassau, which has supplied Holland's rulers for the past 300 years.

For this reason her marriage is a matter of vital interest to the entire Dutch people. She is 27 years of age.

Her engagement to Prince Bernard Zur Lippe Biesterfeld, the nephew of the late reigning Prince of Lippe, was announced on September 8.

Prince Bernard is 25 years of age, and studied at the Berlin University. He has resided in London and Paris, and has travelled extensively in Morocco. At present he is living in Holland.

The young Royal couple recently visited the Netherlands East Indies and the Far East through PCJ, Eindhoven. Reports state that the broadcast was well received in Hongkong.

MAJOR'S THREE PINK GINS AND A MILK PUNCH

'WILL NOT INTOXICATE AN OFFICER'

A BOMBAY CASE

Three pink gins and a glass of milk punch will not intoxicate a British Army officer, said two witnesses—one a doctor—giving evidence in a Bombay case—against Major U. W. Adams, of the R.A.O.C., this month.

Major Adams was acquitted by Sir H. P. Dastur, Chief Presidency Magistrate of Bombay, on a charge of causing the death of the 4-year-old daughter of Quarter-Master Sergeant Williams of the same Corps, by rash and negligent driving of his car.

MAGISTRATE'S COMMENT
Regarding the prosecution allegation that Major Adams was under the influence of liquor at the time of the accident, the magistrate observed that, even if the prosecution evidence that he was drunk when he was examined two hours after the accident was accepted there was nothing to show that he was drunk at the time of the accident.

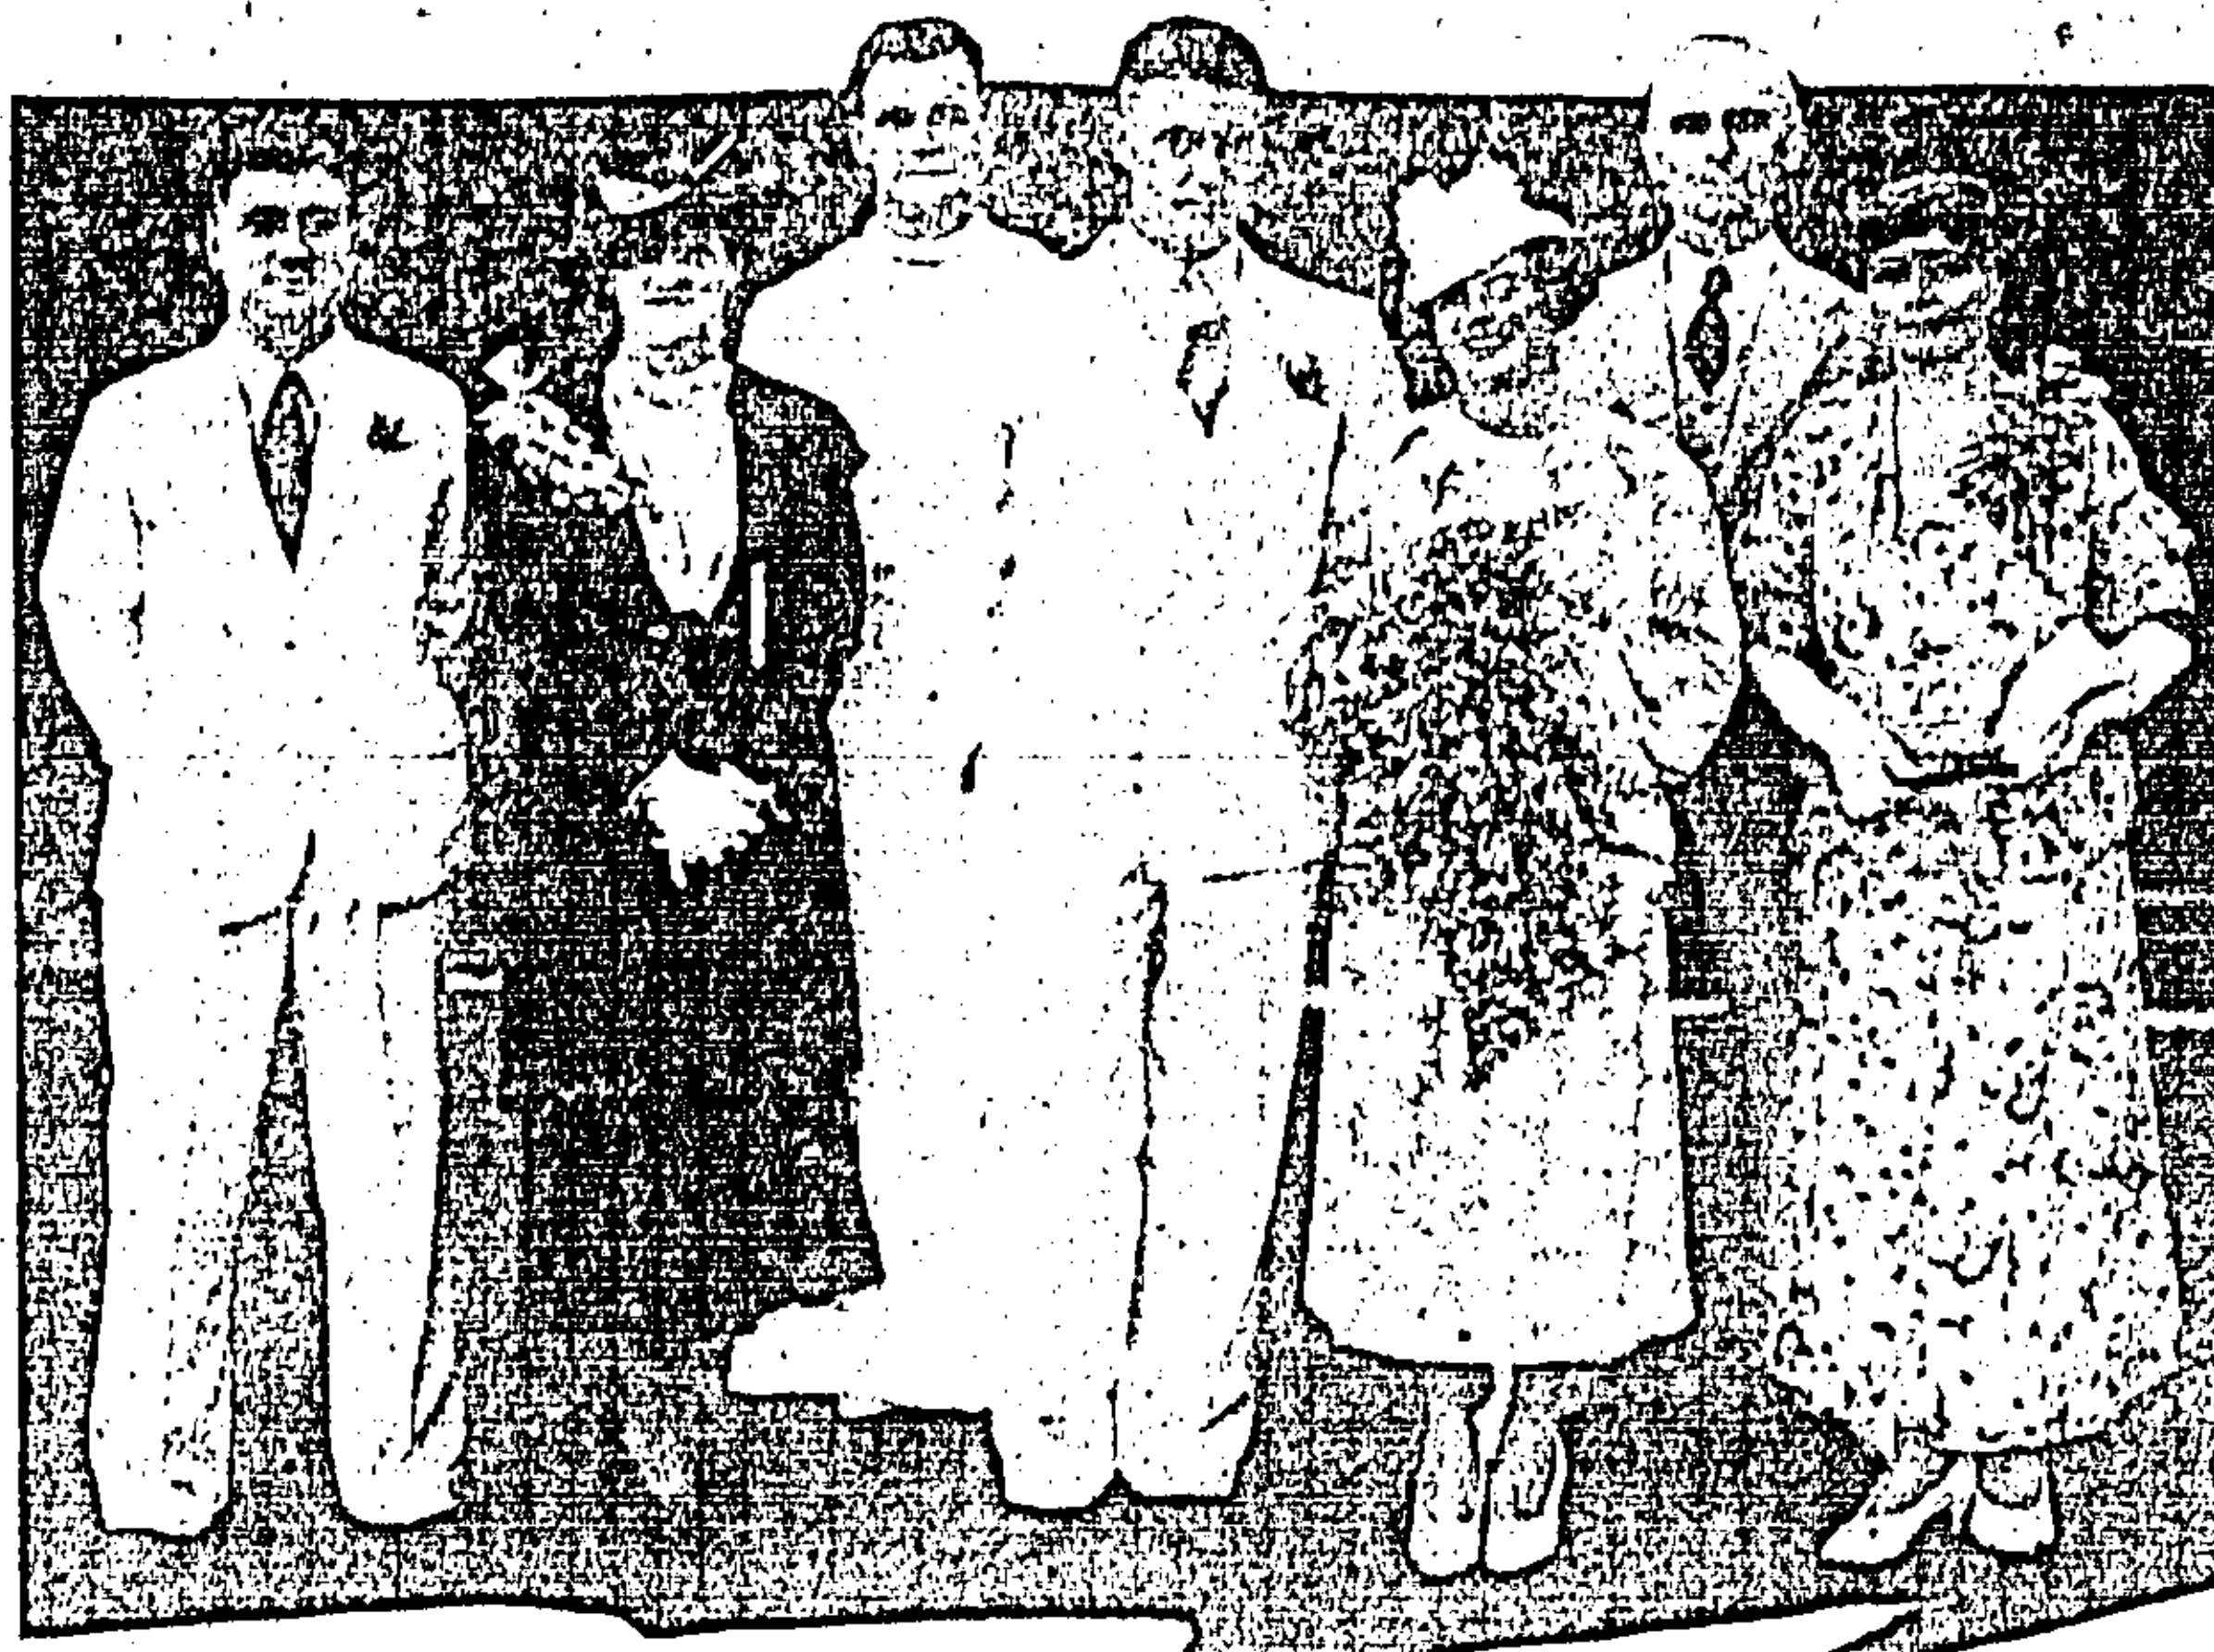

The magistrate describing the accident, said that the sharp point of the left rear door handle of the car caught the child's skull and flung her forward. The accused did not stop.

The prosecution contention was that the nature of the accident, and the manner in which the accused was driving his car proved that not only was he guilty of rash and negligent driving but that he must have been under the influence of liquor at the time of the accident.

THE MAJOR'S FRIEND
The magistrate saw no reason to disbelieve the evidence of Mr. Goddard. No doubt, he said, Goddard was a friend of Major Adams, but unless the court held that he was perjuring himself there was no ground to disbelieve him.

It was admitted that a person who was a moderate drinker could not get drunk on three "pink gins" and a small wine glass of milk punch.

Goddard, who had the same number of drinks, stated that both he and the accused were quite sober. Lt.-Col. Vaziridar and Dr. Panaken

THE MEN WHO MAP THE COLONY

Important Work Done By The
Royal Engineers

THE important part played by the Royal Engineers in the mapping of the Colonial Empire was emphasised by Brigadier H. S. L. Winterbotham, president of the Geography Section, in a paper read to the British Association meeting in Blackpool recently.

Referring to the survey work in India by Major Jervis, a retired Sapper, and the mapping inquiries in the African colonies, Brigadier Winterbotham said that "fortunately for colonial expansion there have generally been some Royal Engineers handy."

POTTED INFORMATION
Brigadier Winterbotham emphasised the importance of maps.

"Maps," he said, "are potted information about environment and about man. They are indispensable to us and at the moment we are, as regards their production, in the trough and not on the crest. We are living through a cycle of indifference and we are forgetting the lessons of history."

"For over a century we have had

SALVATION ARMY LEADER TO VISIT H.K.

GENERAL BOOTH DUE
IN FEBRUARY

GENERAL EVANGELINE
Booth, head of the Salvation Army, will visit Hongkong next February.

Official information to this effect was received by the "Telegraph" this morning.

General Booth will leave London early next month for a tour of the Far East.

She will visit Batavia at the end of January, and is due to arrive in Singapore on February 5.

After remaining for three days in Singapore, General Booth will come on to Hongkong, arriving here on February 12.

It is hoped that the General will conduct a salvation meeting in Hongkong and another in Canton during her stay in South China.

From this Colony she will proceed to Shanghai, where she will conduct another meeting before proceeding to Japan.

General Booth's itinerary calls for visits to India, Ceylon, Netherland India, Singapore, Hongkong, Canton, Grifith, Major (Mrs.) MacKintosh, and the International Secretary for Salvation Army Missionary Activities, Commissioner A. R. Blowers.

She will be accompanied by her private secretary, Lt. Commissioner Grifith, Major (Mrs.) MacKintosh, and the International Secretary for Salvation Army Missionary Activities, Commissioner A. R. Blowers.

There was also of opinion that three pink gins and a glass of milk punch would not make a British officer intoxicated. Taking all the facts into consideration, it would be absurd to infer that because the accused was found to be under the influence of liquor at 7 p.m. he must have been under the influence of liquor at 5 p.m.

H.K.-Singapore Royal Artillery Name Changed

(By A Special Correspondent)

IT has been announced in Army Orders that His Majesty has been graciously pleased to approve of the following change in the designation of the Hongkong-Singapore Royal Artillery, to take effect hereafter:

4th Heavy Battery to be redesignated 4th Medium Battery. This unit will be brigaded in the Hongkong-Singapore Royal Artillery.

At one time, this corps supplied a battery to the garrison of Mauritius.

reason to be proud of the mapping of the British Isles. For much of that period we have known ourselves to be the best mapped country in the world.

"The survey of India has had an extraordinary fine record, and for a period of twenty years or so we tackled the mapping of Africa, largely to illustrate its partition, with zeal."

THE FIRST MAPS

"Then came the war, and since that time, whether in the short boom or in the long depression, survey departments have shared in a neglect similar to that of the fighting services."

Discussing mapping in the colonies, Brigadier Winterbotham said: "In the first years of colonial expansion a general map compiled from old routes and sketches may suffice. Even so administration finds all sorts of difficulties. One is, everywhere, dependent on a guide."

"There is no stocktaking of the country and its peoples. There is no guide to tribal and trade movements, to the grazing grounds of the different seasons, the limits of this or that local custom, or the places where conflicting interests may result in friction."

COLONIES CAUGHT NAPPING

"Then come the problems of development. Where shall the railway run (we are nearly always caught napping over that); how shall the road system develop, where are the raw materials (of which we hear so much to-day). It is absurd to try to solve all these by trial and error."

And finally there are many vitally interested people at home, such for example as ourselves, who can form no accurate mental picture, without a map to work on.

AFRICA SUFFERS TO-DAY

"Fortunately for colonial expansion, there have been, generally, Royal Engineers somewhere handy. They are the first to build the railways, the canals, the government houses, town-planning, and, of course, maps."

"It was part of our policy in former years that there should be, always, a large number of these Royal Engineer officers on Survey work, and every ex-Director-General of the Ordnance Survey still surviving 'found his topographical training at that duty'."

Brigadier Winterbotham said Africa to-day suffered from a lack of good maps, but eventually he thought the colonial surveys of Africa will follow the model of the surveys of India, Ceylon, and Malaya.

Hongkong Badminton Promises To Receive Stimulation

IF MEISE AND SPAGNOLETTI PLAY HERE: SHANGHAI'S CRICKET TEAM

IF A. G. Meise and Spagnoletti can be persuaded to mix badminton with tennis when they visit the Colony next month, Hongkong followers of the shuttlecock game are assured of a treat hitherto inexperienced. Acknowledged to be the two foremost exponents of the game in the Far East (that is north of Malaya), Meise and Spagnoletti, if they agree to give exhibitions, can do more to encourage and improve badminton in Hongkong than any number of practice matches between local players. The two Shanghaianders will be in a position to demonstrate the finer points of the game which at present are somewhat hidden mysteries to the majority of our players. Our enthusiasts would be able to pick up a lot of valuable ideas concerning court craft, tactics, footwork and general technique of stroke production. The Hongkong Badminton Association, I know, is dead keen on getting Meise and Spagnoletti to give exhibitions, and every effort will be directed towards this end. The Association is already in communication with Shanghai, and it is hoped that definite news will be available within the next week. An ideal arrangement would be to persuade the visitors to play one singles match, and to join selected Colony players in doubles. It is also worthy to bear in mind that two other prominent Shanghai badminton exponents will be here at the same time. According to my information Mrs. Burton, who is coming with the Country Club tennis team, is one of the leading Shanghai lady badminton players, while Forbes is no mean wielder of the racket. It is a pity that Mr. Lionel Kew, another Shanghai exponent, will not be in the Colony when our northern visitors arrive, otherwise it might have been possible to arrange a Shanghai men's doubles, which would have been most instructive.

Pat Madar—Matured advice

A. J. Hanson, according to reports, is going to make an excellent substitute as captain, and he will probably have the matured advice of Pat Madar, who, it is anticipated, will be elected sub-captain. Contrary to the expectations of some of the Shanghai critics, Stokes has been awarded a place. And truth to tell it is hard to imagine him being dropped. But apparently Stokes lost form very early during the first part of the season, and even up to very recently was not batting in anything like his well-known brilliant fashion. But Stokes is a fine batsman and his very presence in the team is capable of lending it that moral support which is so often necessary in a match of an important nature. Besides which he can bowl.

Teams Compared

Shanghai's Cricket Team

THROUGH the exclusive medium of the Telegraph, Hongkong yesterday learnt what the opposition will be for the cricket Interport in Shanghai next month. Shanghai's team has been completed, with the exception of one player—and he will be a batsman. The impressive feature of the Shanghai team is the number of thoroughly reliable all-rounders which have been chosen. Booth, Divecha, Parker, Madar, Stokes and Leekie are six, and the appearance of these players alone is sufficient to make Hongkong realise what they will be up against. There is general regret that the splendid all-rounder, Donald Leach, is not in the team this year, but ly matched in batting, but with Shanghai possessing a slightly more varied attack. A. T. Bridge is Shanghai's new wicket-keeper. He is also a proficient bat, though it is highly doubtful whether he will be as powerful in this department as was S. R. Kernani, his predecessor of 1935. Meston, whose selection has been reserved until the last, is Shanghai's one and only fast bowler. Other candidates for his position were H. B. Cochran and J. C. Lucas. But apart from Meston, Shanghai has only medium pace bowlers and a couple of spinners. G. Chatterton, who is expected to fill the eleventh place, is a fine bat and has made several big scores in club cricket this season. If chosen he will probably open the innings with Stokes. Like their opposite numbers in Hongkong, the Shanghai selectors appear to have made a very good job of their task, and everything is now set for what should be one of the finest Interport matches in the history of these series between Shanghai and Hongkong. We are hoping for the best down here, but we do not shut our eyes to the fact that Shanghai is fielding a very powerful side indeed.

Country Club's Visit

IT says much for the enterprise of Mr. T. G. Figgis and his tennis colleagues in Shanghai that Hongkong will, after all, be given the opportunity of welcoming and entertaining a team from the northern port during next month. The Hongkong L.T.A. also deserve a word of commendation for the manner in which they have accepted the advances of Mr. Figgis and gone ahead with finalising arrangements for a visit. The final composition of the Country Club team is a little disappointing in one respect. It was originally hoped that Mrs. Reader-Harris and Mrs. J. Mohr, 1935 Interporters, would be included, but apparently they have been unable to

HOME FOOTBALL RESULTS BOURNEMOUTH BEATEN

London, Sept. 23. Derby County jumped to the top of the table in the first division of the English Football League as a result of today's handsome victory over Wolverhampton Wanderers, whom they beat 5-1.

Four matches were played in the southern section of the third division, when Bournemouth missed a chance of taking over the leadership by losing heavily to Watford on the latter's ground.

Reading did well to secure both points from Bristol City at Bristol, while Swindon made short work of Bristol Rovers. Crystal Palace and Queen's Park Rangers shared points in a goalless draw.

A friendly match between the Arsenal and Glasgow Rangers at High-bury, resulted in a win for the London team. Results as cabled by Reuter follow.

TALK OF £15 000 GUARANTEE

(By Trevor Wignall)

If only one-half of the stories that reach me are true we shall have more professional fights in England during the coming winter than ever we have had before.

London, of course, is the place selected for the main contests, but I am unfortunately in the position of those who view with some doubt my statement that there was a promoter who was willing to hand Joe Louis £15,000 if he would consent to meet Ben Foord.

It so happened that I was the only newspaper man who knew anything about this offer, which I am under discussion, and so far as I am aware the only other person on the inside was Syd Halls.

He occupied an advantageous and highly important position in that he held a contract with Foord for his next two bouts.

The position was that Louis and his connections were still considering matters, but I doubt it even they know that if they turn down the best proposal they are likely to receive for many a day Max Baer will attach his signature to an agreement that will bring him to this country within the next few months.

There is a special reason for the £15,000 guarantee, but I will not be able to make it known for some time.

Smart Canton Tennis Team To Play In Hongkong

THIS WEEK-END

(By "Veritas")

A tennis team of well high Interport standard is being sent down to Hongkong this coming week-end by the Central Park Club at Canton, when return matches will be played with South China Athletic Association on Saturday, and on Sunday the visitors will be entertained by the Chinese Recreation Club.

Leading a very hot combination is Lai Kwong-tsun and Leung Tat-wong, both of whom have played for Canton against Hongkong in Interports.

With them will be See To-plik, Chung Chi-keung, Lau King, and Liu Yat-fong. Incidentally Lau King is a student recently returned from Germany, and is reputed to be a champion tennis player in the making.

C.R.C. TEAM NOT KNOWN

The Chinese Recreation Club team has not yet been finally decided upon. It is understood that Canton wish to play four singles and two or three doubles, and that Tsui Wal-pui, W.C. Hung and Paul Kong are fairly certain to figure in the singles.

Tsui-Yun-pui has already left for Swatow to take up his new business appointment, and will therefore not be available.

IRISH SOCCER LEAGUE DEFEATS ENGLISH SIDE 3-2

KEEN MATCH IN BELFAST KELLY PERFORMS HAT-TRICK

London Sept. 23.

The Irish Football League gained a fine victory over the English League at Belfast today, winning by three goals to two.

Several team changes were announced to the 18,000 spectators before the start of the match, which was played under excellent conditions.

Walker of Belfast Celtic displaced Martin, while Head came in for Lamb in front. The one change in the English League side was Destall of Grimsby for Carter.

The English forwards were the more skilful in the early stages of the game, and Steel put the visitors in front with a header after two minutes of play.

Thereafter the Irish defence improved, while the forwards opened up their game. Kelly equalised in the 20th minute with a ground shot, and he gave the Irish team the lead from a penalty ten minutes later.

KELLY'S HAT-TRICK

Kelly completed his hat-trick with a hard drive, and although England rallied they were held by a strong defence.

However, a minute from the interval Westwood got through for the English League and reduced the arrears, Ireland leading 3-2 at half time.

In the second half the Englishmen frequently attacked but were felled by sturdy defenders. On the other hand the Irish forwards, though having less of the ball, were more dangerous near goal, and Sagar had to save brilliantly on two occasions from Shearer.

Brook of Manchester City, operating on the left wing, was outstanding in the English attack, once heading the ball against the bar from a corner.—Reuter.

All the weights from fly to welter will probably get some sort of a chance in coming months, but it will again be the heavier who will start the most of the discussions. The majority of these, either personally or through their managers, have managed to reach me on the telephone—they have ranged from George Cook to George Slack—but to all I had to explain that without exception promoters are looking for names.

That is why Louis Schmelzing, Pastor, Burman, Brescia and others are on so many tongues. No one need bother his head about Schmelzing. He still remembers that when he offered himself for a fight in London for a few shillings, he was turned down. His price to-day for an appearance in the metropolis would nearly buy Buckingham Palace.

It is positive that he will not again take the ring until he journeys to New York next year to fight Braddock.

THE FUNNY SIDE OF IT
If, that is to say, that affair ever comes about. There has not been the suggestion of a heartburn that the championship battle that was to have taken place next month had to be postponed.

I have mentioned before that the opposition to it, especially from the Jews and the Catholics, was terrific, which means that the illness of Braddock, although regretted, was not unexpected. There was another, and slightly funnier side, to this bout.

It was to have been decided at the Madison Square Bowl on Long Island, but both Braddock and Schmelzing remembered that in its ring not a single title-holder has retained his championship. The supposed hoodoo had nothing to do with the decision to halt the fight until next June, but it is within my knowledge that even in 1937 Braddock and Schmelzing will be much happier if they are asked to swap the punches in an enclosure with a somewhat cheerier reputation.

There was a familiar ring to the yarn that came out of Cardiff this week which tried to tell us that Jack Peterson wanted £7,000 to face John Henry Lewis for the light-heavyweight title. That was the sort of stuff we became accustomed to when Peterson was sitting on top of our own poor heap, but I passed it by because I knew that Jimmy Johnston, never a hater of publicity, was laughing up his sleeve.

His temple, the famous Garden of New York, would not take £7,000 for a Petersen-Lewis tilt, and James Joy well knows it. In fact, it is only a month or so ago that we discussed the fights that might fill the Garden.

Lewis, a coloured man with little personality, has never been a drawing-card, while Petersen could only cut a very small piece of American ice even when he was a champion.

McAVOY MADE LITTLE

The most attractive boxer Britain has sent the U.S.A. in recent years was Jack McAvoy. He hit the newspapers in style, and he gained one or two victories that placed him among the big timers. But he never crowded the Garden, nor, if the doleful truth be told, did he make much money for himself.

If Peterson can induce James Joy Johnston to put with $5,000 dollars, which is regarded even in New York as a decent gate, he will have done something that will entitle him to a large statue in the middle of Fifth Avenue. For James Joy will have to pay at least an equal sum to Lewis, which would make his total expenses something like £17,000.

Knowing the Hon. James as I do I can unhesitatingly mount the stand with the declaration that he would not dig down for that sum if a magician produced for his benefit a rejuvenated Jack Dempsey.

Argonauta Beats H. K. Club In Friendly Game

The Argonauta hockey eleven met a team from the Hongkong Club in a friendly match at the Y.M.C.A. ground, King's Park, Kowloon, yesterday. The game ended 2-1, in favour of the Argonauta team.

The score opened through A. Aricelo, Argonauta's left wing who, receiving an excellent pass from B. Gosman, on the right wing, scored with a hard drive five yards from the Club's goal. The second goal for the winners was scored by M. Beltrao, who secured the ball during a scuffle and scored with a well placed shot.

A. Pinna and J. Goncalves (Capt.) full backs for Argonauta, played an excellent game, stopping many dangerous attacks by the Club's forwards.

Towards the end of the second half, the club eleven attacked strongly and their united efforts were rewarded when G. Summers netted two yards from goal, the ball trickling past A. Souza, the Argonauta's custodian. Souza played a good game, stopping many hard shots.

Honours for the Club team went to J. Hodger (Capt.), F. V. Reid and W. A. Reid, who played excellently in the defence line.

RIFLE ASSOCIATION

Spoon And Practice Shoot At Kowloon

The second Spoon and Practice Shoot held by the Hongkong Rifle Association took place on the Army Ranges at Kowloon City yesterday afternoon in brilliant sunshine. So glaring was the light indeed that many found it too much for them as it rendered the aiming-mark extremely difficult to see, and, as the results below demonstrate, many of the "experts" failed to show anything like their usual form.

Although this shoot, as already stated, is only the second of the season, a pleasing feature, as was the case last week, was the comparatively large number of members who have now taken up rifle-shooting for the first time, and in view of the decision of the Council that the "Over-seas Match," shot for under N.R.A. auspices and conditions shall take place as far as this Colony is concerned by November 30, it seems likely that several of the members who represent Hongkong, will be those who did not shoot at all in the preceding season. In view of the fact that this is the only match-shot for annually, which is competed for by Colonies and Dependencies throughout the Empire, it should be the aim of every keen shot to take part in this competition and it is hoped that the very creditable score which was made in last year's match, will be greatly increased in the near future.

Leading scores made yesterday:

A "W. G." RECORD BROKEN BY HAMMOND

SCORES 1,281 IN AUGUST

The Cricket Championship was won by Derbyshire—but the season died hard, as feats by two of the season's greatest batsmen—Hammond and Hendren—proved. Hammond, batting against Nottinghamshire, at Gloucester, broke W. G. Grace's record that had stood 50 years. It was appropriate that it should be broken by another Gloucestershire player.

In the month of August in 1870 "W. G." made 1,278 runs; at Gloucester, during an innings of 317, beat this number by three. Hammond scored 317, and his innings, which lasted nearly six hours and a half, showed him at the peak of his form. He galloped to his last 100 runs in eighty minutes, and eventually reached—303—his highest score in this country. His previous best was 302 not out v. Glamorgan at Bristol in 1934. The highest innings of his career is his 336 for England against New Zealand at Auckland four years ago. He hit three sixes and 34 fours and completed his 2,000 runs for the season in his fifth three-figure innings since the end of July.

Hendren, with his 75th run against Surrey, at Lord's, became the second player to complete 1,000 runs for the month. Hammond performed the feat on Saturday.

1,000 runs scored in a month by an individual batsman was in 1933, when Hammond, Hendren, and Keeton all completed a four-figure aggregate for August.

HONOUR FOR NEW CHAMPIONS
Derbyshire were the new county cricket Champions, after a reception Derby. The Duke of Devonshire, Lord Lieutenant of the County, and President of the Club, journeyed specially from Bolton Abbey to attend. The Mayor of Derby was present, and the Mayors of Chesterfield, Buxton, Ilkeston, and Licham were invited. Hundreds of telegrams of congratulation were received from all parts of the country.

A message from Yorkshire, the deposed Champions, reads: "Yorkshire send heartiest congratulations upon Derbyshire's winning the County Championship so deservedly."

Nottinghamshire telegraphed: "Heartiest congratulations on well-deserved honour. Next to winning Championship themselves, nothing could give Nottinghamshire public greater pleasure than success of Derbyshire."

M.C.C. TEAM FOR AUSTRALIA
The M.C.C. team which left for Australia on September 12 was, on the evening of the 11th, the guests of the Marylebone Club at a dinner at Lord's.

Mr. P. F. Warner, Chairman of the Test Match Selection Committee, said of the team at Folkestone: "I am sure the players will give a good account of themselves."

Mr. A. P. F. Chapman, the former England captain, said: "It is a solid and well-balanced team and should play an entertaining cricket. Another good all-rounder, and preferably a left-hander, would have strengthened the middle of the batting besides giving a rest to the regular bowlers."

Hongkong Ladies' Hockey Association

ANNUAL REPORT ISSUED

The annual report of the Hongkong Ladies' Hockey Association states that during the year under review, a Junior League was formed, which was the means of stimulating interest in Ladies' Hockey. Mr. A. G. Brown very kindly donated a cup to be played for annually on the same lines as the competition for the Cael Clark Cup. Five teams entered this League, and the Hongkong Ladies were successful in winning the Cup.

The Central British Association won the Cael Clark Cup, thus breaking the long sequence of wins by the Hongkong Ladies, who won the Southern Cup after a replay against the "V" Ladies.

The "V" Ladies retained the Pearce Cup, and the Central British School won the cup presented by Miss H. M. Knill in the Seven-a-Side Tournaments.

Hongkong sent up a team to Shanghai during Chinese New Year, and won the White Shield for the second time, defeating the Shanghai side by 1-0. Two other matches were played—against the American School and the Rest of Shanghai—and the Colony was victorious on each occasion.

Due to various reasons the Champions v. Rest match in the Cael Clark Cup League was cancelled. The Interport team, however, played the Champions, and a Rest team played the Junior Champions, Mrs. Pearce presenting the cups to the winners at the conclusion.

Fund for Interport expenses were raised by various means, including a Bridge and Mah Jongg Drive, a Raffle for a case of beer, and a Stop Watch Competition. In addition, each Club made a contribution, appearing as "Special Donations" in the Statement of Accounts.

The Committee has in mind further schemes for raising funds for the Interport contest next year, should Shanghai decide to send down a team.

The statement of accounts shows that the Association has $570.91 in the bank and $52.90 in hand and that the cost of passages and expenses for the Interport visit to Shanghai in January was $1,108.97.

The third annual meeting of the Association will be held at Gloucester Building on Friday, October 16, at 5.15 p.m.

get away. If they, together with Mrs. Krenov (or as she is better known here, Miss "Billie" Firth), could have come down, there would have been ladies' matches well up to Interport standard. However, according to reputation, the eight or nine players who will arrive here on October 8 should be able to hold their own among local club players, and so long as the Colony's representative team is not too hot a composition, should also be able to give a good account of themselves in that match. At the present, I believe it is the intention of the Hongkong L.T.A. to arrange a two-day unofficial "Interport", with a programme of men's matches on the first day, and mixed doubles the second. It is not possible at the moment to say what inter-club matches will be arranged, but probably the K.C.C., U.S.R.C., C.R.C., and Recrelo will be invited to entertain the visitors.

New York, Sept. 10.

THE disclosure that frail but romantic Alfonso, once heir to the Spanish throne and now known as Count Covadonga, recently put some crown jewels in "pawn" was made in New York to-day in a court action.It was stated that the count, who was disinherited by his father when he married the beautiful Cuban commoner Senorita Edelmira San Pedro, "pawned" the jewels when he failed to master high-pressure American salesmanship.In three months as a salesman for British Motors Limited, of New York, car importers, he sold only one car.
FINANCIAL SECRETSSquabbling officers of the company, who fought in the Supreme Court over a receivership petition, were responsible for secrets of the Covadonga finances becoming public.Mr. Philip Donlin, attorney, declared that he had advanced the count an unspecified sum.
"There hasn't been any default in payments on the note," he said, "but I still have the jewels."
Mr. Donlin said he made the loan at the request of Mr. Palmer Woodbury, formerly president of British Motors.During the hearing of the action Count Covadonga presented an affidavit in which he expressed himself as favouring receivership.He explained that he had not read the first affidavit before signing it.
Marta Rocafort, the beautiful Cuban girl whose name has been constantly linked with Count Covadonga since the annulment proceedings against the countess were instituted, declared at Havana

STARK PICTURE OF THE SPANISH WARHere, in just one brief despatch telling of an attack by miner-soldiers on a barracks, is the whole pitiless drama of the civil war in Spain:—

Madrid, Sept. 19.

MINERS, marching in columns and carrying sticks of dynamite which they fused and threw over the walls, have successfully stormed the Simancas Barracks, Gijon, on the Bay of Biscay, which was held by a strong force of rebel troops.The storming party, taken from the mines of the As-turias, marched in perfect order towards the barracks in face of machine-gun and rifle fire.Many of them were riddled by bullets as they fused their sticks and flung the dynamite.As the first column neared the walls, a second line set out, walking over the bodies of fallen comrades.WHITE FLAG Wave after wave of miners broke against the four walls of the barracks until finally, with buildings in flames, wrecked by explosions, the rebels hoisted the white flag of surrender.The casualties are estimated to have run into thousands. Witnesses say that two-thirds of the
for the Puerto Rican people, he said, rebels must have been killed.
When the "cease-fire" wassounded, ragged and begrimed soldiers of the rebel garrison, crying pitifully, came forward with hands raised in token of surrender.
They were surrounded by milita-men and taken through the streets, while the people shouted for joy.One hundred and forty prisoners were the only survivors of a garrison which had totalled 1,000 officers and 500 men at the beginning of the siege.
The victors managed to salvage arms and ammunition from the gutted stronghold. They found three pieces of light artillery, twenty-five machine guns, and three hundred rifles.PLANES READY
The miners are now marching from Gijon to Oviedo to join a force of eight or nine thousand other miners who have been laying siege to Oviedo for eleven days.Advance groups of reinforcements have already arrived and are now stated to be at the gates of the city.
Unless the rebels surrender this morning the loyal columns will attack.Their leaders have announced their intention of fighting for the city street by street. Government airplanes are in readiness and will bombard the city.
It is estimated that with the miners, there are altogether 15,000 men in the Government columns.It is believed in Madrid that Oviedo is certain to fall, but only after bloody and bitter fighting comparable to that at Badajoz when the rebels took that city.Surrender, it is said, would save probably ten thousand lives.—

No War For Britain

—MR. KELLOGG

MR. FRANK B. KELLOGG, creator of the famous Kellogg Pact of non-aggression between nations, says that Britain will not experience war for at least twenty years.He said this in the course of a fifteen minutes' talk on golf and politics, golf and physical fitness, golf and revolution in Spain—and golf.During the whole time he was playing imaginary chip shots with his mashie niblick all over his drawing-room at Claridges as part of his policy of maintaining physical fitness.Before I had been with him for two minutes he told me that he was 80, that he gets up at six o'clock every morning, walks seven miles a day and can touch his toes 20 times without effort.Taking up his mashie niblick he said:
"There's no need for anyone in Britain to worry about war. Britain will be at peace for at least 20 years.""The people here are like me. You all go off and play golf and football. You don't worry about war—no, sir. And that's the only way to keep sane about it.""If Britain is at peace won't the rest of Europe be at peace?" I asked."Impossible," he answered,
"the complexity of Europe's affairs won't be straightened out for at least 50 years."CANNY BRITAINAfter an imaginary ball had soared over the lamp standard and dropped dead within two yards of an imaginary hole he answered my questions about Spain."In my view it is unimportant—this revolution. Spain's affairs are purely internal. The only thing to do is to let them fight it out among themselves and that is what everyone is anxious to let them do.""If Britain is at peace won't the rest of Europe be at peace?" I asked."Britain is very canny in the way she is keeping quiet about it. Too much talk makes war."
And when I asked him about reparations and debts he shook his head and concentrated on a very difficult shot.LINKED BY GOLF"You know—golf is a grand game.
While Britain and the States play golf we'll always be friends. We're brothers under the vest, and we both enjoy the wise-cracking diggs we have at one another.""No one has any fears about Anglo-American naval competition—they know that there is no rivalry between us.""Do you think that poets are going to prevent war, or must every nation fend for itself?" I asked.
"A poet to end war is not the work of one nation but of many nations," he said. "It springs from the very hearts of the people of the world who are longing for any step which will prevent another world calamity."NO CIVIL WAR"Will there be any civil war in other countries of Europe?" I asked.
"Not in Britain, anyway. You manage your affairs too sensibly.
"But listen. Let's talk about golf.
Just watch this. It's a good one... gosh, if only I could do that when I get out on to the course."
And so I left him—still practising.ATE 366

JAPAN REJECTS CHINA PROTEST

"Far Stronger Measures Must be Applied"

Shanghai, Sept. 23.

Japanese patrols to-night crossed the International Settlement's boundary into Chinese territory and approximately 500 bluejackets are patrolling the Japanese district of Hongkew and the adjacent Chinese administered section of the city, Chapei.

A Japanese Embassy spokesman declared:

"Our indignation at this latest outrage is unbounded. We can no longer trust the Chinese assurances and must regretfully take whatever steps we consider suitable."

Throughout the night Japanese officials here have been preparing to follow the sternest policy. The Japanese Acting Consul-General, Mr. Terasaki, has sent a note to the International Settlement's Municipal Council and also the Shanghai Municipal Government asking co-operation in the search for the murderers of the Japanese seaman, who was shot down by unidentified gunmen last night, and whose two companions, also bluejackets, were wounded.

It is reliably learned that the commander of the permanent Japanese Naval Landing Party in Shanghai, is preparing to announce to-morrow independent measures for the protection of Japanese nationals.

The present Shanghai force at his command is less than 2,000, but 4,500 reinforcements are due to arrive to-morrow morning aboard H. I. J. M. S. Muroto.

The old flagship, Idzumo, lying at a pier a few yards from the Japanese Embassy, issued 50 bluejackets when the alarm spread following the shooting, and the men took post in the

BRITISHER HERO OF SHOOTING

Shanghai, Sept. 23.
It was revealed here to-day that the hero of yesterday's incident was a Scottish special constable, Mr. W. P. McAllan, who lives near the scene of the crime.

Hearing shots, Mr. McAllan rushed into the street and arrested one suspect, assisted by Japanese civilians and others.

Interviewed by Reuter, Mr. McAllan said he had been forbidden to make any statement.

Embassy grounds. But they were recalled almost immediately. The Consul-General, Mr. Wakusugi, is due from Nanking, to-morrow morning.—United Press.

GRAVE SITUATION

Nanking, Sept. 23.
On receipt of the news of the outrage in Shanghai, in which unknown gunmen shot and killed one Japanese bluejacket and wounded two more last night, the Japanese Ambassador to China, Mr. Kawagoe, immediately threatened to leave Nanking.

In a brief statement, he said: "There is a dark shadow over Sino-Japanese relations."

"Our demands will gain a new insistence with the latest outrage. We regret the Chinese Government lacks good faith."

Nanking, Sept. 24.
It is feared that Sino-Japanese relations are on the brink of a major crisis.

The Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Kawagoe, after a lengthy conference with high Japanese officials, declared to-day that the Hongkew incident showed that far stronger measures would have to be applied.

ITALY TO QUIT LEAGUE

ANNOUNCEMENT IS EXPECTED TO-DAY MUSSOLINI IN CONFERENCE

Rome, Sept. 24.

It is reliably learned that Italy will announce her withdrawal from the League of Nations before noon to-day, following a conference between Signor Benito Mussolini, the Prime Minister, and Count Ciano, the Foreign Minister, which is scheduled for 10 a.m.—United Press.

The complication which has apparently resulted in Italy's decision to abandon the League of Nations is a result of the League's decision to accept the credentials of the Ethiopian delegation to the Assembly, in spite of Italy's protests.

A fuller report on the developments at Geneva in the last twenty-four hours appears on Page 12.

Paris, Sept. 23.

It is generally felt that something is bound to happen very soon in view of a continuance of the flight of gold, owing to fears of devaluation of the franc.

It is understood that over nine million sterling's worth of gold has been exported in the past five days.

Officially, the position is still that the Government will hold off devaluation for some time yet, in order to see whether an international currency agreement results from the intense lobbying in Geneva, but if there are no results at Geneva, M. Leon Blum, the Premier, will take the plunge.—Reuter.

BLUEJACKETS HUNT FOR WEAPONS

Scenes like this of 1932 are being re-enacted in Shanghai to-day as Japanese bluejackets search for the gunmen who last night murdered an unarmed seaman and wounded his two companions. So far the Japanese have arrested one suspect, and they have rejected the Chinese protest against their armed invasion of Chinese territory.

Rebels Expect to Take Madrid by October 15

Gibraltar, Sept. 23.

The Leftist Government in Spain is approaching a desperate crisis. The Rightists are threatening at present to cut off the Toledo army from Madrid and thereafter to take the capital at their leisure.

Indications are that the Rightists are contemplating, first, a drive upon Toledo, thereafter isolating the Leftist besiegers of the Alcazar; secondly, defeating these besieged; thirdly, advancing east and north-east, and severing the Madrid-Valencia railway, and simultaneously attacking Madrid from the west, north, north-east and south.

The Leftists' counter-plan appears to be, firstly, to capture the Alcazar; secondly, to safely remove the besiegers in case the attack fails; thirdly, to dispatch the Alcazar forces to attack the rebels as they advance on Madrid, and thereafter to join the main Leftist army on the Madrid highway; fourthly, to erect a living wall between the rebels and the capital.

Britain has suspended money order services to Spain and its possessions and Portugal has officially stated that the Rightists are fighting against Communism.—United Press.

ALCAZAR'S FALL NOW DENIED

REBELS HOLD ON IN RUINS TANK ATTACK FAILS

London, Sept. 21.

The Daily Herald's Toledo correspondent says that the loyalists' plan for a dusk attack, behind a large tank, with the objective of finally overcoming the resistance of the rebels in the Alcazar of Toledo, has failed.

The attack broke down because of the tank's engine trouble and the rebels repulsed the infantry storming party.—United Press.

Madrid On October 15

Seville, Sept. 23.

It is indicated that the Rightist armies expect to occupy Madrid by October 15 and that they intend to end the civil war entirely before the commencement of the fall weather. It is strongly intimated that the insurgents, after the completion of their Toledo drive, will approach Madrid slowly.

According to reports, the Leftists are forming on the Madrid front, with headquarters at Navacerrada, only 20 miles southwest of the capital.

It is understood the Rightists intend to proceed cautiously after the expected capture of Toledo, using an elastic plan of operation and keeping the defenders of Madrid bottled. The Rightists on the left wing intend to proceed deliberately, for otherwise they would be susceptible to flank attacks. It is also intended to move all attacking columns simultaneously, preventing the loyalists from massing in by-pockets.

It is anticipated that the communiques of the next few days will show widely distributed attacks.—United Press.

RIGHT OF SELF DEFENCE ARGUED

JAPAN'S FEELINGS DEEPLY STIRRED

Shanghai, Sept. 24.

The Chinese authorities have protested against Japanese bluejackets patrolling extra-settlement streets.

However, the Japanese Consul-General has rejected the protest on the grounds that Japanese are entitled to exercise "the right of self defence" wherever Japanese nationals reside.—United Press.

STRONG PROTEST

Shanghai, Sept. 24.

The City Government of Greater Shanghai handed a note to the Japanese Consul authorities this morning strongly protesting against the invasion of Chinese territory in Chapei by Japanese marines.

The marines entered the Chinese city last night after the shooting of a Japanese seaman, Taminato, in the International Settlement.

The marines went in to the Chinese city at midnight, recalling the action of 1932 when a naval party, attempting to penetrate Chapei, was met by the 19th Route Army and halted after severe fighting.

The marine action followed an announcement by Rear-Admiral Eljaro Kondo, commanding the Japanese Naval Landing Party, that he was "taking armed measures to protect Japanese lives within and without the Settlement."

The marines thereupon entered the Chinese roads bordering on the International Settlement, stopped traffic, searched passers-by and conducted domiciliary visits.

Hongkew and parts of Chapei this morning were still guarded by strong details of Japanese marines, but traffic was allowed to circulate.—Reuter.

OUTWARD CALM

Shanghai, Sept. 24.

A tense atmosphere prevailed in Hongkew, thickly populated by Japanese and Chinese, when Reuter's correspondent toured the area last night. The population was outwardly calm but all houses were blazing with lights.

The Japanese community is deeply stirred by this, the sixth murder of a Japanese national in China in three months. Japanese anxiously discussed the situation on street corners and doorsteps.

The Chinese, for the most part, kept indoors, but a few of the bolder

HOARE TO EXPLAIN DEFENCE

POSITION OF IMPORTANCE

London, Sept. 23.

A surprise was caused in political circles to-day by the news that Sir Samuel Hoare, First Lord of the Admiralty, will speak on the subject of defence instead of Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, at the Conservative Conference at Margate next week.

The announcement supports the contention that Sir Samuel is destined to fill a most important post in the Government when, as is generally expected, Mr. Neville Chamberlain succeeds Mr. Stanley Baldwin as Prime Minister.

It does not necessarily follow that Sir Samuel will succeed Sir Thomas, but there is nothing to prevent him exercising actual control of all defence services, in view of his position as First Lord of the Admiralty and his past experiences as Air Minister and Foreign Secretary.—Reuter Special.

Wife "Murdered By Post"

Paris, September 15.

A GRIM story of "murder-by-post" is believed to lie behind the sudden death by poisoning of pretty Mme. Roger Fauveau, aged 27, wife of an officer in the Paris fire brigade, while convalescing after an illness at a village near Limoges.

Last night, the police say, Mme. Fauveau received a parcel of medicine from her husband and a note which read:

"Darling, here are the medicines I promised you. You will see there are several different things, but I think the blue powder will suit you best. Take as per instructions given by Michel. My love to you."

She took the powder with a glass of water, suddenly called for help, and was dead before anyone could reach her. Her body turned a violet colour.

CERTAIN CURES

The powder consisted of copper nitrate and strychnine.

Arrested in Paris, the husband denied that he had deliberately sent his wife poison, saying, "I had the powder recommended to me by a man named Michel," who was "just a café acquaintance."

"I sent her the sachets of powder for sleeplessness, and other medicines for her bad circulation. They were described to me as being certain cures."

An exhaustive search is being made for "Michel" among quack doctors in Paris.

Mothers' Self-sacrifice Leads To Disease

Dr. F. Lawrence Smith, in a report to Merton and Morden Council, says:

"In the poorer homes, if economies have to be made, it is the mother who 'does without,' and it would not be surprising to find that in many cases the mother's self-sacrifice is responsible for dental disease."

"STAY YOUR HAND UNTIL AUTUMN—STRIKE THEN"

A MAZING revelations of how France was saved from a Red revolution and civil war two months ago were published recently in the London Sunday Dispatch from, according to that newspaper, reliable source.

At the eleventh hour the French Communist leaders received urgent instructions from Moscow. Reports received by the Komintern from its agents in France raised doubts as to the outcome of the revolution, and Moscow counselled delay till the autumn.

How It Feels To Be Televised

LIKE INSECT UNDER MICROSCOPE

COMPLEX APPARATUS OF £100,000 STATION

By L. MARSLAND GANDER

I was televised recently at the D.B.C.'s new Alexandra Palace station. As I sat in the glare of a battery of lights, which beat on me like the tropical sun, my face was transmitted from one room to another.

Television doubles the terrors of the sound studio. The sifter feels like an insect under a microscope. He has no idea whether his picture is being received, and if so, what impression it is creating.

The television camera points at him silently and remorselessly.

This experience occurred during a tour of the first station in the world built to give a public television service. It is more, than twice as powerful as any other television station and is destined to be four times as powerful. The cost is estimated at £100,000.

On the ground floor are two large transmitting halls, one equipped with Baird and the other with Marconi-E.M.I. apparatus. Above are duplicate rooms used as studios for each system.

The complexity of the equipment is enormous. Few understand its inner mysteries, and the B.B.C. engineers are being trained by the expert staff of the two television companies.

VALVE COOLING PLANT

I wandered through a maze of grey and silver panels. In the Marconi-E.M.I. transmitting hall there is a sinister-looking piece of equipment in a black cage, called a mercury arc rectifier. The inside is like a cave suffused with violet light and when the apparatus is switched on and off a strange moan is heard through the hall.

Signals from the studio overhead are magnified a million times. Altogether 562 valves are used for the Marconi system alone. Elaborate water-cooling plant for the valves is a feature of the Baird system. When the temperature rises above danger point there is a system which automatically shuts down the station.

Two 60 kilowatt valves, locked up like valuables in a safe deposit, can be parted and recombined in half an hour for the fitting of spare parts.

In all the Marconi-E.M.I. transmissions the Emitron camera, which picks up the scene direct, will be used. In the Baird studio, however, intermediate film gear has been installed. This method involves use of an ordinary cinematograph camera. The film is developed, fixed, washed and dried and passed through the transmitter 40sec. later. Baird's also have a "spotlight" studio. Here the person to be televised sits in semi-darkness. A spot of light traces 6,000 lines over every part of the subject in one second.

BROADCAST OF FILMS

Apart from direct televising, both systems will broadcast films, and there is a miniature cinema theatre for the use of the producers.

Pictures demonstrated to me recently on viewing panels, which will be used by the control engineers, were most impressive. They were even more distinct than those I have been receiving at home, which have already been described exclusively in The Daily Telegraph.

These pictures were not, of course, broadcast but were merely relayed from one room to another. Seen in this way, even a picturesque outdoor view of the Palace grounds, faintly blurred on my home screen, was clear-cut. A close-up picture from the spotlight studio of Miss Rita Grant was particularly effective.

The station is complete with offices, dressing-rooms, a restaurant, and a concrete arena outside for open-air broadcasts.

Nicholas Schwenn, manager of the International of Red Syndicates, reported to Moscow headquarters the following adverse factors:

The French army was too well disciplined and time was needed for Bolshevik propaganda to spread.

Army officers would generally be obeyed by their men.

The provinces had not been adequately canvassed by Red emissaries, and agricultural workers were mostly distrustful of them.

SCENES

After feverish meetings in secret, the French Communist leaders gradually agreed to play their hand, but they resolved to intensify their propaganda during the Parliamentary recess, and watch for the propitious moment to make their stroke in the autumn.

News of the Reds' intention to seize power reached members of the Blum government when the stay-in strikes were at their worst, and there were dramatic scenes in the salons of the Ministries.

M. Lebas, Minister of Labour, who was one of the first to learn of the Red plot, urged the Premier to take prompt steps to foil the Communists. It is said he even threatened to inform the Army High Command himself.

The way for the Red revolution had been skillfully prepared by Moscow's paid agitators.

DEFYING THE PREMIER

Hopes of success ran so high in the Red camp that on the night of June 9, at a meeting of 30,000 followers in the Palais des Sports, Maurice Thorez, leader of the French Communists, boasted that his party would soon be in power.

M. Blum, the Premier, was on the platform, yet Thorez declared: "Although we support the new Popular Front Government we have nothing in common with it, and soon we shall be the masters of the country."

His words were hailed with frenzy. Men screamed their approval, and women wept with joy.

Turks To Ban Gangster Films

Angora, Sept. 10. Turkish censors are to ban—Gangster films "likely to have a bad effect on youth," and "Political and religious propaganda films likely to incite prejudice about a country, nation, or race."

In addition, military films will be scrutinised by a member of the Turkish General Staff.—Reuter.

Paris, Sept. 20.

MME. JULIETTE LAMBERT ADAM died this morning at the Chateau de Lagnelles, aged 100.

Patroness of French poets and novelists, and a notable journalist herself, she attained the rare distinction of having a Paris street named after her during her lifetime.

To-day the Rue Juliette Lambert, as it is called, commemorates a great French patriot who saw, and felt with extreme bitterness, the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 and yet was spared to see retribution in the downfall of Germany in 1918.

The happiest day in her full life was, perhaps, in July 1919, Clemenceau, remembering 1870, remembered that Mme. Adam had known it, too, and accordingly sent a

EUROPE TO JAVA BY CANOE

BOAT SUNK IN ARABIAN SEA

THE Dutch brothers Gerrit and Nicolas Entrop, of Haarlem, have arrived at Allahabad by canoe on route to Sourabaya.

They are following the Dutch air mail route as nearly as possible and hope to establish a record.

Similar attempts have been made before but no traveller has completed the journey.

FIERCE MONSOON

They left Haarlem, in April, 1935, and hope to complete the journey in ten months, taking just over two years. Unfortunately a part of the voyage was accomplished by steamer and train owing to refusal of permission to allow them to travel by sea from Constantinople, down the coast of Asia Minor. Also because of the bad weather in the Arabian Sea and fierce monsoon condition along the west coast of India.

The brothers started from Haarlem, travelling up the Rhine, down the Danube through the Black Sea to Constantinople, then by steamer to Beirut and overland to Baghdad, canoeing down the Tigris to the Persian Gulf.

ALL EQUIPMENT LOST

A misfortune overtook them in the Arabian Sea. The canoe capsized one night in a storm, and all equipment was lost. Swimming two miles to the shore, the men landed near Chahbar from where they took steamer for Karachi. At Karachi new equipment and a 16-ft. collapsible canoe was bought. The journey was then continued. Travelling down the Jumna, they have arrived at Allahabad.

The brothers spent all day at the aerodrome awaiting the Dutch air mail. They will shortly leave by the Ganges for Calcutta from where their route lies along the Arakan-Malayan coast to Singapore and Java.

In connection with the two lectures
to be given by His Eminence
Maulana M.A. Aleem Siddiqui today and to-morrow, it is understood that beside these he is to deliver many talks in Urdu during his stay here. Two of these are fixed for Saturday at 2 p.m. and Sunday at 4 p.m. at the Hongkong Mosque,
Shelley Street, and at the Kowloon
Cemetery respectively.

The Maulana's schedule provides for his leaving on October 3 for Singapore, Kuala Lumpur and Penang. He has already done much good service in the cause of Islam
in Shanghai and Japan and it is hoped that he will return here next
year.

The lecture to-day, to be given at 5.30 at the Peninsula Hotel, deals with "The Status of Women,"
and the subject of to-morrow's talk,
at the Mohammedan Cemetery
Mosque at the same time, will be
"Message of Peace." Both of these are in English.

JOB RACKET

WOMAN SENTENCED FOR SWINDLE

Before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning, the case against Chun Ping, 35, married woman, who was alleged to have obtained (a) $2.80 from Cheung Lo fun, married woman, on August 8, (b) $2.80 from Fong Yau, married woman, on the same day, (c) $1.50 from Tse Siu-kei, married woman on July 29 last year, (d) $1.50 from Chun Mui-ching, single woman, on July 29 last year, and (e) $2 from Sung Shui, married woman, on August 21, by falsely pretending she could obtain employment for them at the British American Tobacco Company factory, Gloucester Road, was sentenced to one month's imprisonment on all charges except
(b) which had been withdrawn at the last hearing. An added 14 days' hard labour will be served if she is unable to pay $7.30, the amount of money involved, to the various complainants.

At to-day's hearing, Tsang Yau, a man whom defendant said knew of the conspiracy made against her by the complainants, was called and said he only knew defendant for one month and that he knew nothing of her troubles.

Chun Kiam, a woman whom defendant had accused as the cause of the conspiracy, testified and said she never had anything to do with the defendant, and that she had never spoken to her before.

After this evidence, defendant, who had a previous conviction twelve years ago, was sentenced.

TALKS ON VITAL SUBJECTS

In connection with the two lectures
to be given by His Eminence
Maulana M.A. Aleem Siddiqui today and to-morrow, it is understood that beside these he is to deliver
many talks in Urdu during his stay
here. Two of these are fixed for Saturday at 2 p.m. and Sunday at 4 p.m. at the Hongkong Mosque,
Shelley Street, and at the Kowloon
Cemetery respectively.

The Maulana's schedule provides for his leaving on October 3 for Singapore, Kuala Lumpur and Penang. He has already done much
good service in the cause of Islam
in Shanghai and Japan and it is
year.

The lecture to-day, to be given at
with "The Status of Women,"
and the subject of to-morrow's talk,
at the Mohammedan Cemetery
Mosque at the same time, will be
"Message of Peace." Both of these are in English.

FOR CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR

HOLIDAY TRIPS TO MANILA

The Dollar Steamship Lines and American Mail Line announce that they are again running Christmas and New Year's excursions to Manila similar to those run during the holidays last year.

The Christmas excursion will feature their s.s. President Coolidge leaving Hongkong on December 17, and arriving at Manila on December 19, to sail from Manila on December 23, and arriving back in Hongkong on the morning of December 25. This excursion will give excursionists five days and four nights in Manila, ample time to do considerable sightseeing during the holiday season in Manila.

The New Year excursion will feature the American Mail liner President Jackson, leaving Hongkong on December 20, arriving at Manila on December 22, and returning from Manila on December 30, arriving Hongkong at 9 a.m. on January 1.

These popular excursions, which were well supported by Hongkong public last year, will be quoted at the same fares for similar excursions last year. The first class round trip fare is H.K.$180.00, and special class on the President Coolidge H.K.$120.00, while tourist class accommodation on the President Jackson, H.K.$100.00.

The above fares provide for transportation to and from Manila on the same steamer, with the privilege of remaining on board the steamer at Manila, passengers using the steamer as their hotel, having their meals on board and sleeping in the cabins. If desired, the first day on board steamer after arrival in Manila will be free; all additional days will be charged at H.K.$10.00 each per person.

These excursions to Manila have become extremely popular to Hongkong residents inasmuch as they give excursionists the opportunity of visiting the gay city of Manila and the Philippine Islands without the necessity of going through a lot of bother insofar as securing passages and visas, as well as making hotel accommodations, is concerned. It is expected that a great number of local residents will take advantage of these two excursions by the two popular ships.

ILLEGAL IMPORT OF SILVER

CABIN BOY AND TAILOR CAUTIONED

Admitting a charge of importing 48 silver bars, weighing 650 taels, unmanifested cargo, on board the s.s. Tai Shan, Lal Tim, 28, cabin boy, and Lau Kwan, 26, tailor, were cautioned by Mr. S. F. Balfour, Central Magistrate, this morning. The bars were ordered to be confiscated.

Revenue Officer A.W. Grimmer, who prosecuted, said that about 8.30 a.m. yesterday, C.R.O. 95 stopped the second defendant at the Canton Wharf as he was coming off the steamer, carrying a basket which contained the bars. The man said he was asked to carry them by a cabin boy employed on board the ship. The first defendant was subsequently arrested and he said the bars were given to him in Canton to bring down to a money-changer in Hongkong.

Mr. Grimmer added that he was not pressing the case, as the confiscation of the silver was a penalty in itself. Appearing for the defendants, Mr. F. E. Nash said the second accused had really no knowledge of the affair at all. He happened to be on the ship on the morning in question and was asked by the first defendant to carry the bars to a money-changer. He did so and as soon as he was challenged he pointed out the first defendant who produced the money-changer to whom he was asked to deliver the bars.

ROYALTY IN ABERDEEN

SURPRISE VISIT BY THE KING

London, Sept. 23. The King and the Duke of York were both in Aberdeen to-day. The Duke, accompanied by the Duchess, paid an official visit for the purpose of opening the City's new infirmary buildings which have been erected and equipped at a cost of over half a million pounds.

The King's visit was informal and unexpected, but His Majesty was cheered by railway workers and others who recognised him when he arrived at the station to welcome the guests who had travelled by train from London on their way to Balmoral.—British Wireless.

WUCHOW DEFENCE MEASURES

Canton, Sept. 24. Wuchow reports state that the capital of Kwangsi will be removed from Nanning to Kweilin to-day. Meanwhile, numerous concrete machine-gun emplacements are being erected along the foreshore at Wuchow.—United Press.

Final Tribute To Airman

FROM MANY FRIENDS OF MR. T. C. BLACK

Liverpool, Sept. 23. The remains of the late Mr. T. Campbell Black, recently killed in an aerodrome mishap, were cremated here this afternoon.

A large crowd, including brother fliers and members of the theatrical profession, attended the service.—Reuters' Bulletin Service.

A British Wireless message states that those present at the funeral included Sir F. Shelders, Director General of Civil Aviation, and Mr. C.W.A. Scott, who with the deceased airman, won the London to Melbourne Air Race. It is announced that Black's aeroplane, "Miss Liverpool 1," will not compete in the London-to-Johannesburg race which starts on Tuesday.

14 KILLED IN COLLISION

FRENCH EXPRESS TRAIN TRAGEDY

Paris, Sept. 23. Fourteen people were killed and 25 injured when an express from Bordeaux was telescoped by a local train near Lourdes.

The local train dashed into the rear of the stationary express, which, owing to engine trouble, could not be moved from the track before the oncoming local train arrived.—Reuters' Bulletin Service.

BOY CYCLIST SUCCUMBS

KOWLOON COLLISION SEQUEL

A serious bicycle accident occurred in Shaikwan last night, when Lau Kwan, aged 10, attempted to cross Main Street and ran straight into an oncoming cycle ridden by a man named Chan Hai-tak.

The boy was removed to the Government Civil Hospital where his condition was reported to be serious. Further enquiries reveal that he died last night. It is understood that Chan has been detained pending further police enquiries.

RADIO CONVENTION

Geneva, Sept. 23. The Broadcasting Conference has adopted a draft Convention under which the Powers pledge themselves not to allow broadcasts constituting incitement to war or likely to disturb good international understanding by statements known to be false.—Reuters.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

SOAR NOT TOO HIGH, TO FALL, BUT STORM TO RISE.—Massinger.

A 12-year-old boy, Wong Ping, was taken to the Kowloon Hospital yesterday when he fell down and hurt his eye while playing with friends.

In the latest appointments announced by the Colonial Office appears the name of Miss J. H. McLellan, as Nursing Sister, Hongkong.

While walking under the verandah of No. 28 Bonham Strand, Ho Lok, 28, a coolie was struck on the head by a window shutter which fell on him from above. He was taken to the Government Civil Hospital.

Mrs. Gehring, of No. 19 Waterloo Road, has reported to the police that while driving car No. 3443 in Waterloo Road yesterday she knocked down a man named Lau Chiu, aged 62, who was later conveyed to hospital for treatment.

While working at the Kowloon Dock, Chan Kum, 30, coolie, was accidentally struck by a wire hawser which broke of its own accord. Chan, who lives in No. 33 Pok Lee Street, Hungnam, was injured on the head, and was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital for treatment.

The flannel dance, which was to have been held by the Health and Strength League at the Hotel Cecil on Saturday has been cancelled. However, there will be a grand carnival dance on Saturday, October 3, lasting until 2 a.m., for the purpose of bidding farewell to members shortly leaving the Colony.

Kwu Cheung-ching, aged 27, ex-soldier, Kwok Kai-fai, aged 34, earth-carrying coolie, and Lee Kang-yiu, aged 31, earth-carrying coolie, were brought before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning, charged with possession of an automatic pistol without a licence on September 22. A remand of 48 hours was granted on the application of Detective-Inspector A. H. Elston.

Admitting the possession of a small quantity of heroin pills at No. 74 Tai Nam Street, first floor, on September 16, Chan On, aged 36, unemployed, who appeared on remand before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning, was fined $150 or, in default, two months' hard labour. Detective-Sergeant J. S. Riddell said the pills were found in three cigarette tins on the premises, which were a heroin den not then in use.

TWENTY YEARS OF GASTRIC TROUBLE

Maclean Brand Stomach Powder "Worked Wonders"

Gastric trouble is no respecter of persons; it strikes equally at high and low, rich and poor. But Maclean Brand Stomach Powder gives equal benefit to all, regardless of their rank or station in life. Read this letter:

"I have suffered from gastric trouble for quite twenty years on and off," writes Mrs. L., a nurse, "having been in hospital many times for treatment, but after leaving hospital I was bound to keep strictly to milk diet which kept me in rather a weak state—but now, since taking Maclean Brand Stomach Powder I can eat quite a lot of food that I dared not touch before."

"I am mostly nursing, and shall be pleased to recommend your powder to any sufferer who may come under my care in the future."

Remember this: It was the "signature" brand that cured Mrs. L.—the powder with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle. That's the one you want, in bottles in cartons. Never sold loose. Also in tablet form. If any difficulty in obtaining write to: Banker & Co., Ltd., P. O. Box 536, Hong Kong.

NATHAN ROAD ROBBERY

ARRESTED MAN IN COURT

A man alleged to be one of the gang of Chinese who committed an armed robbery at No. 229 Nathan Road, second floor, on Tuesday morning, and who got away with a large haul of money and jewellery, has been arrested, and appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning, charged on four counts of robbery, together with others not in custody.

He was Sze Hok-chuen, aged 30, unemployed mason, and was charged with robbing Yu Hok-shing of a diamond ring, a pair of earrings and $135 in Hongkong currency; Yu Hok-wai of $52 in Hongkong currency, two Y1 silver coins, a gold bracelet and a wrist watch; Yu Shuk-chung of a pair of child's gold bangles, a gold cash, 12 silver buttons, two pocket watches, two wrist watches, two Y1 silver coins, two Chinese banknotes, six Hongkong 20-cent pieces and a bunch of keys; Cheng Shu-hung of $87.70 in Hongkong currency, a bunch of keys, and a whistle.

Detective-Inspector A. H. Elston appeared for the prosecution, and said he had been instructed to ask for a remand of 48 hours, which was granted.

One case each of Small-pox and Diphtheria and two cases of Typhoid were reported to the local Health authorities on Tuesday.

Leung Ting, 40, coolie, was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital yesterday for treatment to injuries received when he fell from a ladder while stacking boxes of sugar at the Taikoo Sugar Refinery.

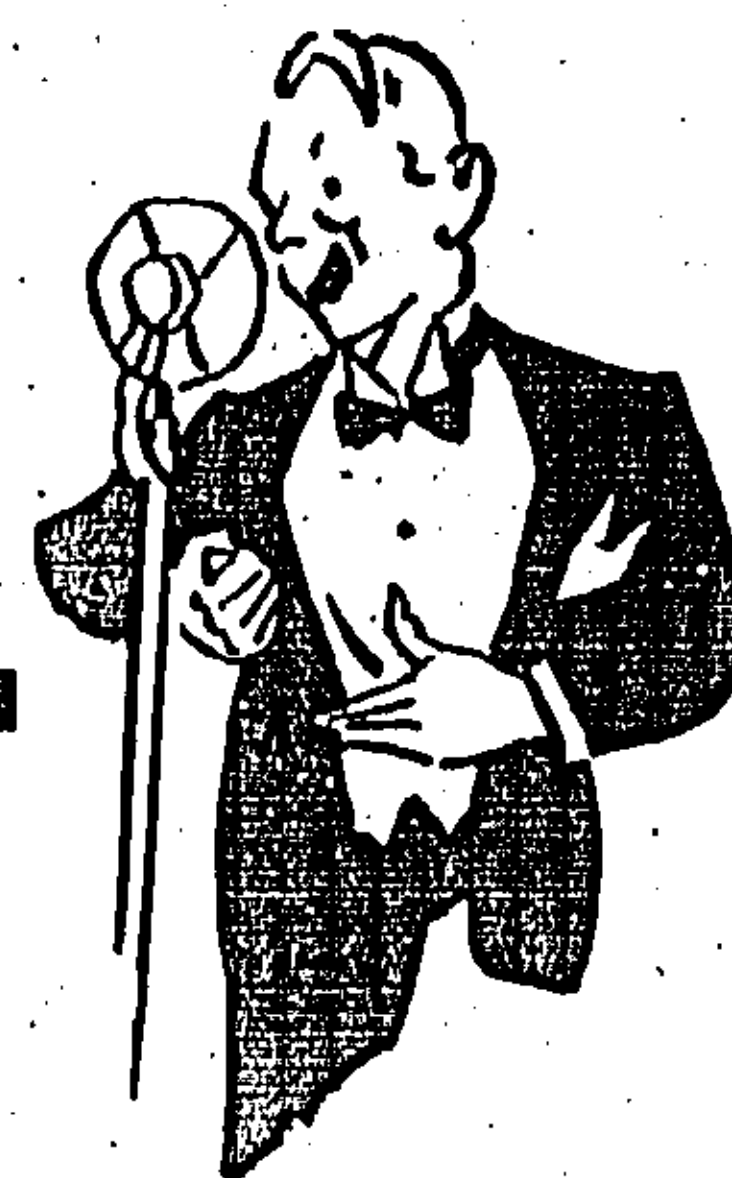

Work on the pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk to be presented at the Y.M.C.A. has now begun in earnest, and the first rehearsal has been fixed for Wednesday, October 7. The dates of production are December 22, 23, 24 and 26.

Brought before Mr. S.F. Balfour at Central Magistrate's court this morning on a charge of dumping a dead child at Upper Laser Row, Shum Sum, 34, married woman, was remanded for 48 hours for the purpose of receiving a doctor's report in connection with the cause of death.

The Lido open-air dinner dances which have been featuring twice weekly throughout the Summer months are to be discontinued after Wednesday, September 30. Commencing Saturday, October 3, the venue of these dinner dances will be the Repulse Bay Hotel, where these functions will take place every Wednesday and Saturday throughout the cold season.

Arrested at the Kowloon Railway Station on September 1, Si Man-kin made an appearance before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning on a charge of the possession of two plates upon which were engravings for the purpose of making forged $5 Kwangtung Provincial banknotes. Mr. F. I. Zimmerman said he was representing defendant. Acting Sub-Inspector A. Kinnear declared that the police objected to bail. Accused was remanded in police custody for 48 hours.

The committal hearing for the case in which four men and two women are charged with possession of a large quantity of heroin in mass and pill form was fixed for October 6, at 2.30 p.m. by Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning. Accused are Tung Kam, 56, unemployed, Leung Sik, 18, delivery boy, Ye Lai, 25, servant, Chau Tung, 31, carpenter, Chan Ho, 33, married woman, and Leung Chun, 24, woman. They were arrested on the third floor of 103 Sai Yeung Choi Street on September 9. Mr. M. A. da Silva was present and stated that he had been instructed to appear for three of the defendants, though he did not know as yet which three.

NO SCUTTling

There can be no questioning the point that Britain's prestige suffered a heavy blow when, as champion of collective pressure on Italy, she failed to prevent or stop the Italo-Ethiopian war. Had she been able to secure the support which she had every reason to hope for, Ethiopia would probably never have fallen into Italian hands, and the League of Nations would not have been left in the difficult position in which it finds itself to-day, with Ethiopia still claiming a right sovereignty over its own territory. To that extent, the blame for inaction does not lie wholly at Britain's door. It is true that Britain might have taken on Italy single-handed, but such a step might easily have provoked a world war. Matters would have been different had united pressure been brought by League members on Italy, the aggressor. Since the Italian occupation of Ethiopia, there have been suggestions in certain quarters that Britain has lost grip of the Mediterranean situation—that, in fact, she intends to adopt a policy involving scuttling from her base at Malta. The growth of the Italian air arm has undoubtedly exposed this British Colony to danger, situated as it is within short flying distance of the Italian aerodromes. But Sir Samuel Hoare, who has been on a tour in the Mediterranean, categorically declares that Britain has no intention of abandoning her position; that, on the contrary, she intends to face the new situation in a manner which will make the position secure for the future. This does not involve any new policy—it merely amounts to a determination to preserve our overseas communications. The necessity for action along these lines is made all the more imperative by reason of the possibility that the insurgents may win in Spain and Fascist control be secured over that country. In such an event, with the further possibility of Portugal definitely linking up with the Fascist combination, Gibraltar's position might easily become affected. Italy's hold over Ethiopia is also a factor in the changed situation. Sir Samuel Hoare says the Italo-Ethiopian war may have been worth while in that it has caused Britain to concentrate her attention on the Mediterranean with a view to remedying past deficiencies. The inference is that there has been neglect in the past. It is, however, reassuring to know that there is now every intention of making amends and that Britain, so far from yielding her position in the Mediterranean, is resolved to re-enforce her authority in this vitally important region.

"THERE IS A BATTLE AND

MALAGA is BURNING"

It is not every day, fortunately, that we wake up in the middle of a Civil War, but that was our experience in our village near Malaga. Maria, the housekeeper, woke us, saying: "There is a battle and Malaga is burning." From our hill we could see Malaga in the distance like a toy city, but that morning it was enveloped in a pall of smoke. We learned that there had been a rising of the Right-Military elements, and a great deal of shooting during the night. The Calle Larios had been fired partly to stop sniping from the roofs, partly in revenge by people from the poor quarters of the city; a rich suburb by Malaga, the Limonas had been almost completely burned. A few English people and many Spaniards who were caught in the Calle Larios when the fighting began had a truly hideous night. An intense fire from machine guns and rifles raked the streets and came in at the windows.

MEANWHILE in our village—it is large by English standards, containing several thousand people—the day became very exciting. All the cars had been confiscated and, painted with the initials V.G.T., C.N.T. or F.A.I., were rushing about bristling with arms. Buses went by with a pistol projecting from every window.

Everyone was in high spirits and very friendly. They waved their pistols at the passer-by in the most amiable and disconcerting way. There were a great many accidents. Our cook's "novio," or young man, was killed by this almost at our door.

That afternoon bands of armed youths came searching the houses for arms. At first they refused to search our house as they knew us and we were English, but later a band which did not know us did come in. I happened to be alone in the house with the servants and went to the door myself. They entered with their guns held forward as if they were boarding a pirate. Their youthful leader was armed with a toy sword which particularly pleased me.

ALTHOUGH I was polite to them, I received them coldly. They began their search in my bedroom, where the poor young leader, very embarrassed, groped about among my silk underclothes. The next drawer he opened happened to be full of my little girl's headless dolls. This completed his confusion, and he hurriedly abandoned the search. By that time we were all on excellent terms, and as they left we

That day we were horrified to hear that a friend of ours, a farmer who had been under a sort of detention in his own house, was being taken off to Malaga by a crowd against the will of the village. This, we thought, would probably mean his being murdered on the way. My husband rushed off down the street with the intention of dominating a mob armed not only with pistols and rifles, but with a machine-gun, with which they were menacing the protesting village Syndicalists.

It turned out that they wanted not our friend, but a carabiniere, an ugly customer who had helped to cook evidence on various occasions to secure convictions, but even him the village refused to give up, and the leaders of the crowd were obliged to go off without their victim. The village said he was an "hijo del Pueblo," a son of the village, and no hijo del Pueblo is going to be taken off to Malaga to be murdered if they can help it.

The village knows their deeds and can judge them. Malaga has nothing to do with the matter.

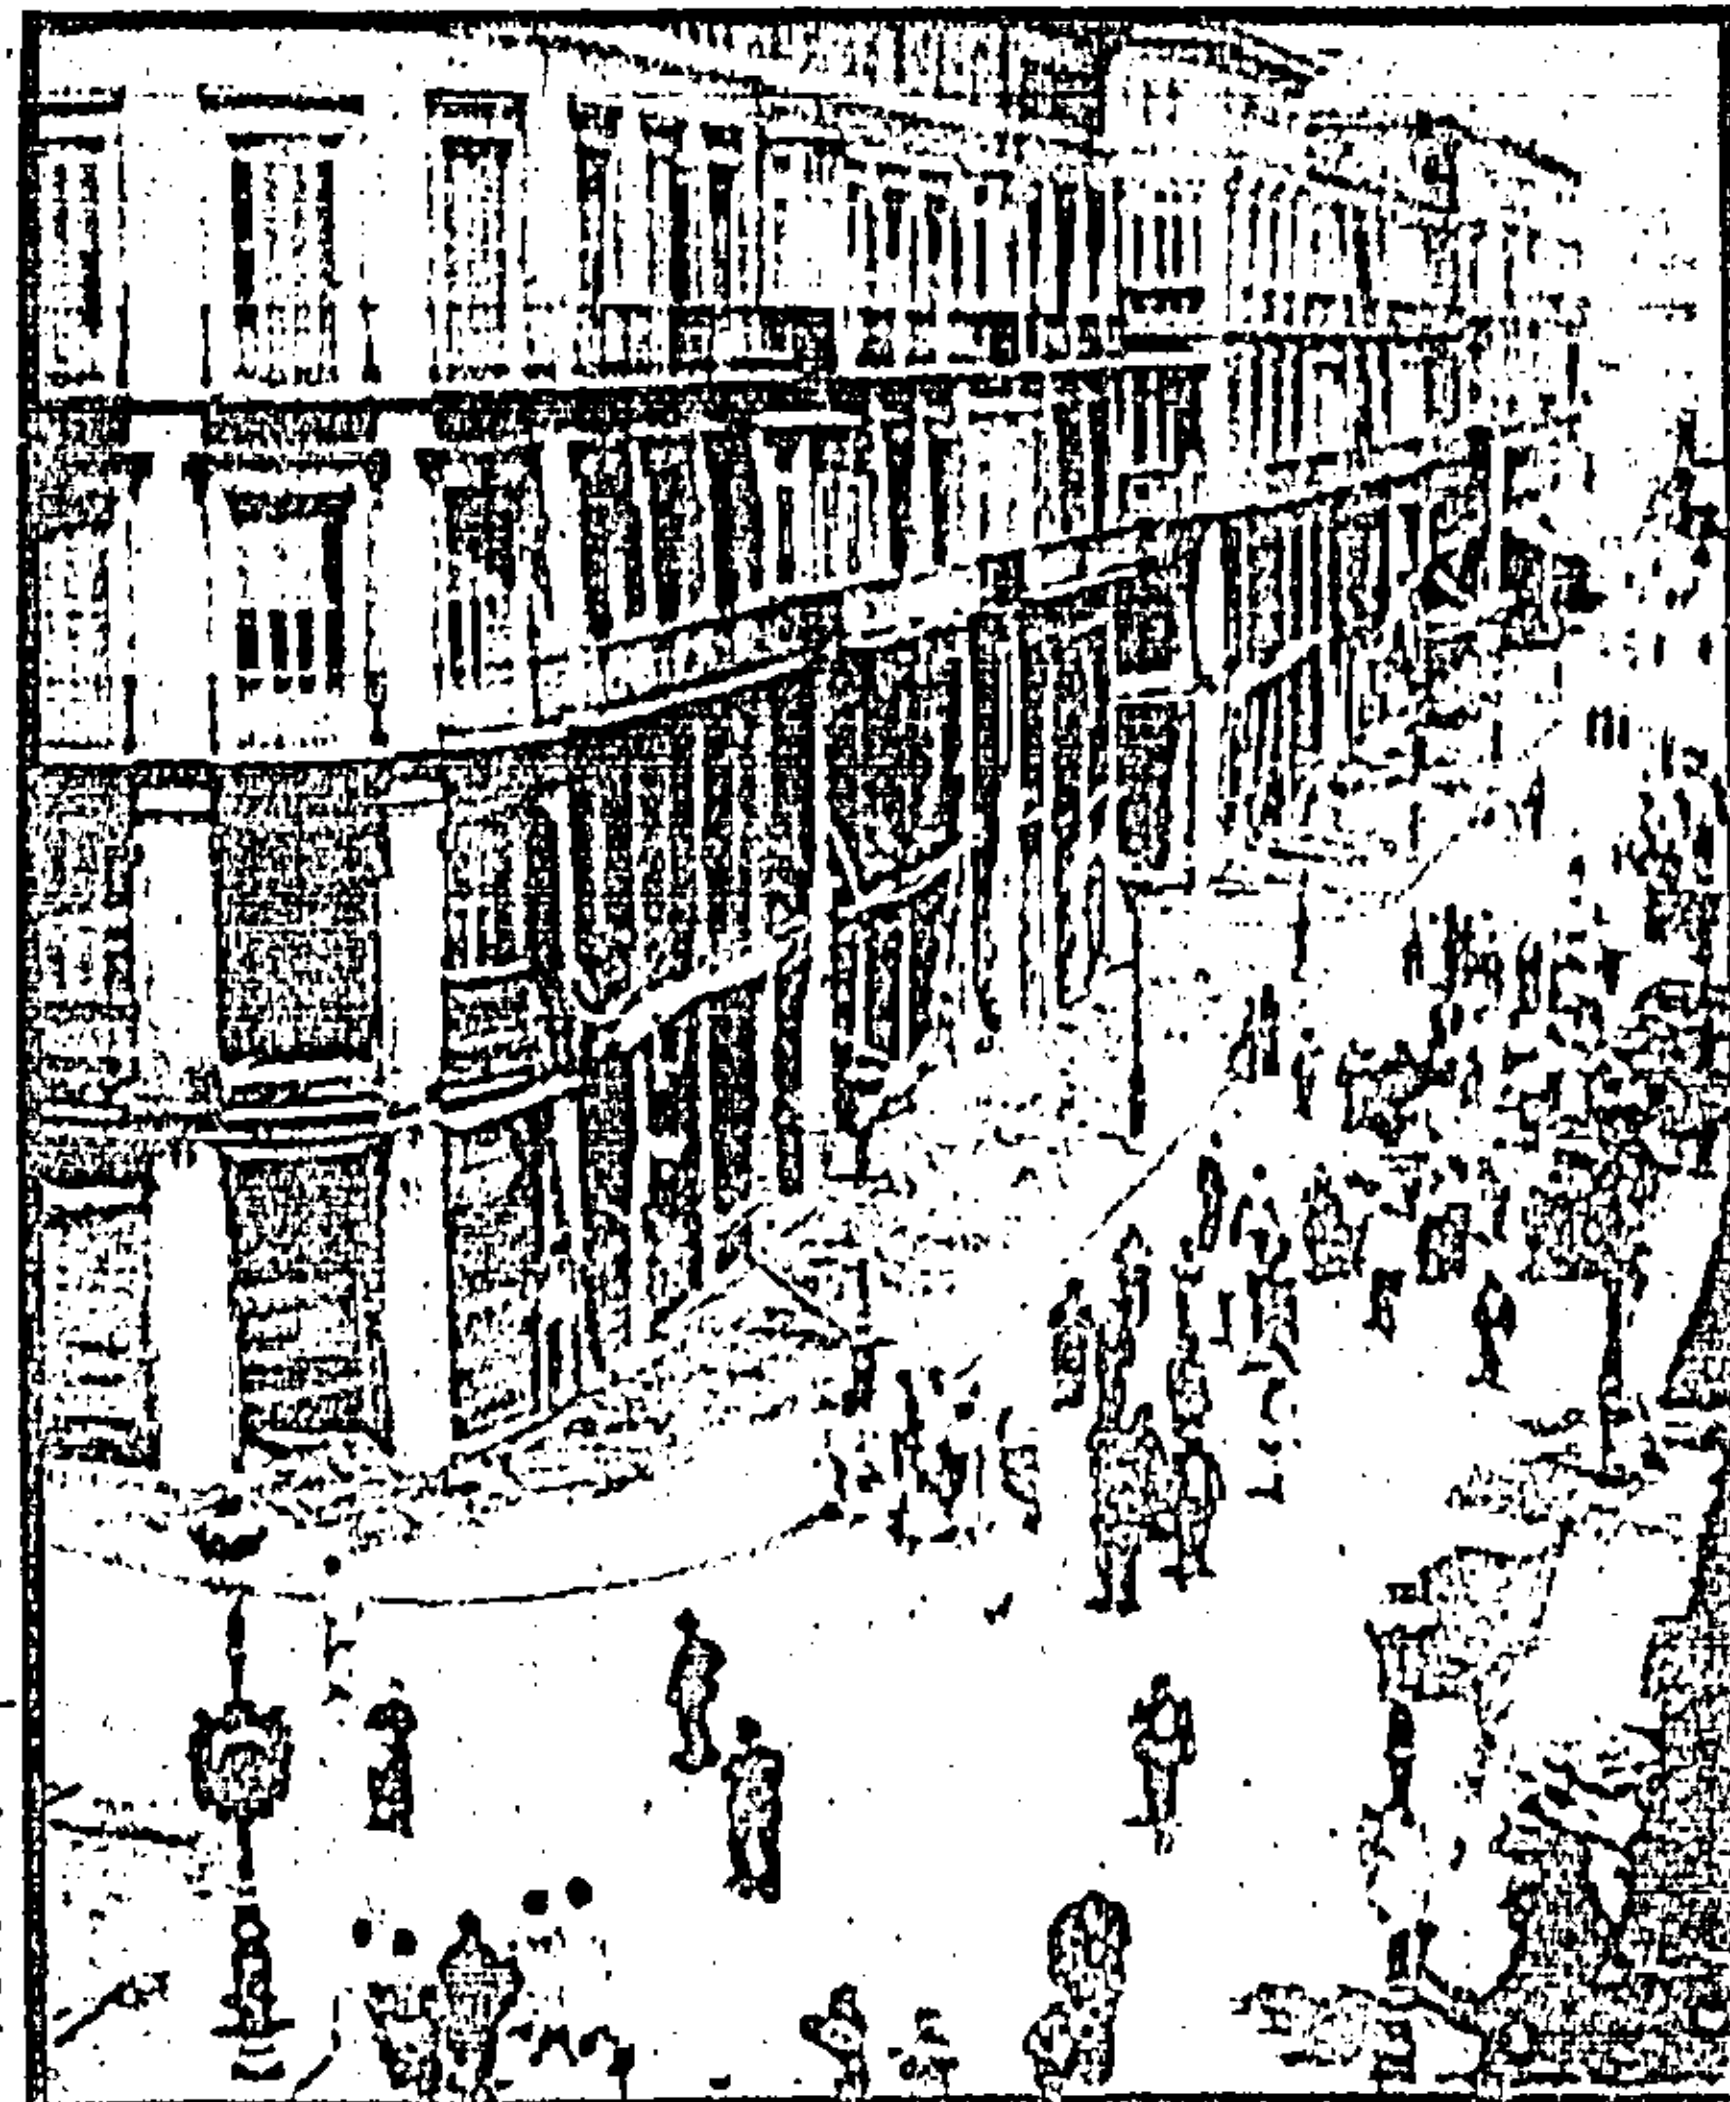

This is very typical of Spain where every village is as strongly aware of itself as an entity as a Greek City State.

As night came on a sinister rumour began to run about the village. "The Tercios are coming! The Tercios are coming!" There was a sort of horror upon the village.

THE Tercios are the only regular troops Spain has and are always kept in Morocco. They consist of 10,000 of the Foreign Legion and 5,000 Moorish troops. They are splendid soldiers, but have a bad name for ruthlessness, and are said to have slaughtered people indiscriminately in Oviedo.

Most of the Tercios, however, had been unable to cross to Spain

as the sailors remained loyal to the Government and those that had crossed were far away, in Seville and near Gibraltar. The first day or two Malaga gradually became quiet. The lorries and cars with their amateur soldiers continued to rush by, but their number gradually decreased. The little local trains began to run again and we went into Malaga, first to see the ruins and then to draw money from the bank, and shop.

The town had an extremely ominous appearance. Of the few people in the streets most were young workmen. The ruins in the Calle Larios were still smoking and they were clearing the wreckage from the street.

The second time we went to Malaga the city had resumed its normal life. There were no many people about, but women were shopping and the markets and shops and banks were all open.

The post goes out and comes in, but only in the Province of Malaga; the little trains run, but they only run to the nearby villages. The only news, except the wild village rumours, comes over the radio and is hopelessly conflicting. La Passionara, a female Revolutionary, talks in a strange, shrieking, ecstatic voice, the sound of which is somehow extremely poetic. Madrid talks seriously, as a Government should. The President Azana made a really fine speech one mid-night, reserved, noble, and from the heart.

The Right leader in Seville, General Queipo de Llano, talks in the most extraordinary manner. He pours out a stream of information about the military situation, makes bad jokes in the worst taste, and insults personal enemies of whom no one has ever heard.

He threatens to shoot all the soldiers, Civil Guards and Guardia de Asaltos who have remained faithful to their allegiance to the Government, as traitors! When things have begun to be quiet in the district, and people were beginning to work in the fields again, we woke one morning before dawn with loud, strange sounds in our ears.

A Right aeroplane had come over and was dropping incendiary bombs on the Malaga flying-field a few miles away. After the bombing was over we went out on the balcony to see if any damage had been done.

ARE YOU HAPPY?

HEALTH and happiness—not infrequently, one of them exists when the other is absent.

I have in the course of my professional life come into contact with hundreds of very happy people who by no means could be spoken of as healthy.

Also, I have known—and some of my most intimate friends have been among the number—very many men and women in the pink of health, yet as far from embodying happiness as could be the most painfully afflicted victim of illness.

There is an old toast that runs, "Health, Wealth, and Happiness!" I imagine that few are foolish enough to assume that the possession of ten thousand pounds, or even of one thousand pounds, a year brings happiness with it, or is essential to happiness. One of the most unhappy men with whom I have ever come into personal touch had no nameable physical ailment, and had an annual income of anything between fifty and sixty thousand a year.

INJURED PRIDE

One of the happiest men I know is a kindly-dispositioned old bachelor, whose income oscillates between nineteen shillings and twenty-one shillings a week.

Of course, the bearing of income on happiness becomes more real and more immediate when, instead of being a bachelor, with only oneself to cater for, one has a wife and three or four children. For people thus placed, there is a money minimum below which happiness is not so easy of attainment.

Three times out of four, however, the dissatisfaction associated with a small but secure income is due far more to injured pride than to any shortage of the material needs of life or of physical health. But we must admit that the economic difficulties may be great,

True Health Not Essential to Make

By Dr HARRY ROBERTS

even where the income is assured. The earning of that small income more often than not involves living in or close to some large town. Rents are apt to be large in relation to total wages or salary.

A cultivated young woman patient told me, in the course of a consultation, that she and her husband, with an income of less than three hundred a year, were compelled to live in a district in which the cheapest small flat available cost them ninety pounds a year.

She was eager to have a child or children of her own, yet dare not, if justice were to be done to those for whom the parents would have made themselves responsible.

THE PRIME CONDITIONS

What, then, are the prime conditions of happiness? A certain minimum of health and a certain minimum of wealth and economic security are, for most of us, among the necessary foundations of a happy life. These things do not of themselves ensure happiness; they but clear the way of obstacles. Mere freedom from care is possible on little more foundation than this. But freedom from care is not happiness.

In the first century of the Christian era lived a Greek slave called Epictetus. Here are one or two of his sayings:—

"Men are disturbed, not by things, but by the principles and notions which they form concerning things."

"Remember that you are an actor in a drama, of such a kind as the author pleases to make it. If short, of a short one; if long, of a long one. If it be his pleasure you should act a poor man, a cripple, a governor, or a private person, see that you act it naturally. For this is your business, to act well the character assigned to you; to choose it is another's."

These quotations give some idea of intelligent modesty—a very different thing from servility or a sense of inferiority. When one has reached this plateau of philosophy, and takes it for granted that we are what we are and could not have been otherwise; there is nothing to be ashamed of or concealed about in being what we are and in being circumstanced as we are; the feeling of safety, of standing on firm ground, is almost astounding in its comfort. That is the real basis on which happiness may be built.

THE BASIS OF ALL

Happiness itself is a manifestation of faith, of confidence. Everyone who sets out to scale heights which he is convinced are within his competence is likely to be happy; everyone who is in love, believing absolutely in the miracle embodied in his beloved, and in his power to appreciate that miracle; as well as those who both feel the mystery of the phenomenal universe and are convinced that there is a meaning and a beneficial purpose behind it, all these are likely, in proportion to their faith, to win the prize of real happiness.

I am not a member of any Christian church, but I believe that the philosophy, and the hints for the conduct of human life, expressed in the recorded sayings of Jesus, are about the most important contributions that have yet been made to the science on which a sound art of happiness must be based.

WE saw, to our horror, clouds of smoke apparently pouring from the house of some Spanish friends who lived next to the aviation field. We dressed rapidly, and with our gardener, Antonio, rushed off to help them. As we approached near the house we saw that it was uninjured.

The clouds of smoke were rising from two incendiary bombs which had fallen within 30 yards of the house and set light to the dry grass. Our friends were up and dressed, and we urged them to abandon their house and come to us, which they subsequently did. That night the lower floor of our house was crowded with poor villagers who were terrified of bombs coming through the roofs of their homes, and also of the Moors coming in the night and cutting off their heads.

The next morning there was some lively bombardment of the Spanish fleet in the harbour. Almost all the English have gone, and the few that remain are urged by the Consul to go now.

BUT we shall remain because we have responsibilities here: Spanish friends of all classes and political opinions to protect if we can.

Our servants, old friends whom we brought down from the Sierra Nevada with us, to take care of, and our beautiful old house and large library to save if possible.

We have the friendship of the village, and fighting here is unlikely. We love Spain, and though we can do nothing for her we do not want to abandon the country, where we have lived so peacefully and happily, in her critical and desperate hour.

H.M.S. DANAE AND
CUMBERLAND

Important changes in the British naval forces in the Far East will take place during the next two months.

Admiral Sir Charles Little, Commander-in-Chief of the China Station, will transfer his flag from H.M.S. Kent to H.M.S. Cumberland which has been rebuilt and modernised since she was in the Far East a year ago.

H.M.S. Danae, a wartime cruiser of the "D" class (4,850 tons) left England recently to replace the Kent. The Danae will reach Hongkong next month.

The Danae was ordered in 1916 and was completed three or four months before the Armistice.

REFITTED SIX YEARS AGO—She is fitted as a flagship, and carries a complement of about 450 men.

Six years ago, the Danae, together with the Delhi and Dragon, sister ships, was refitted. Her guns include six 6-inch, three 4-inch, four three-pounders, two two-pounders, two machine-guns, eight Lewis guns, as well as torpedo tubes.

RESERVE FLEET SHIP—H.M.S. Cumberland has also left for Hongkong. When the Kent returns to England large repairs will be undertaken.

The Danae has been attached to the reserve fleet at Devonport, her home port. She was recommissioned with a reserve crew last November.

In Hongkong she will be commanded by Captain L. E. H. Maund who has been attached to the Plans Division of the Admiralty.

THE "TELEGRAPH" LEARNS FROM LONDON SOURCES THAT PRINCESS JULIANA, THE HEIRESS TO THE THRONE OF THE NETHERLANDS, AND PRINCE BERNARD ZUR LIPPE BIESTERFELD, WHOM SHE WILL MARRY SHORTLY, WILL ALMOST CERTAINLY VISIT HONGKONG AND THE FAR EAST ON HER HONEYMOON.

Contrary to first reports Princess Juliana will be married before the end of the year.

It is learned in court circles in the Hague that the marriage will take place during the second half of December.

Arrangements for the wedding are now being made.

It is stated that Princess Juliana and her consort will spend the first part of their honeymoon in Europe and afterwards visit the Far East.

They are expected to come East during January and February.

Their first destination will be the Netherlands East Indies, via Singapore. From there they will proceed to Manila, Hongkong and Shanghai.

It is improbable that the Royal couple will stay in Hongkong for more than a day, merely passing through this Colony.

The route to be followed will be substantially the same as that taken by King Leopold of the Belgians and his wife, the late Queen Astrid, when they visited this Colony in 1933, shortly before King Leopold's accession to the throne.

Princess Juliana is literally the last descendant of the famous House of Orange-Nassau, which has supplied Holland's rulers for the past 300 years.

For this reason her marriage is a matter of vital interest to the entire Dutch people. She is 27 years of age.

Her engagement to Prince Bernard Zur Lippe Biesterfeld, the nephew of the last reigning Prince of Lippe, was announced on September 8.

Prince Bernard is 25 years of age, and studied at the Berlin University. He has resided in London and Paris, and has travelled extensively in Morocco. At present he is living in Holland.

The young Royal couple recently broadcast to the Netherlands East Indies and the Far East through P.C.J. Eindhoven. Reports state that the broadcast was well received in Hongkong.

PASSES AWAY IN ENGLAND

The death of Mr. James Punccheon on September 23 at the age of 50, is announced from Eastbourne, where he had been living in retirement since he left Hongkong in 1933.

The late Mr. Punccheon will be remembered by many old hands as a boilermaker at the Kowloon Docks and a member of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club. He came out to Hongkong many years ago to join the Kowloon Docks but later transferred to the New Engineering Company at Shanghai, from which he retired and went home about 1914. His wife died at home, and Mr. Punccheon returned here in 1922 to renew his association with the Kowloon Docks where he remained to the end of his stay in the Colony.

He leaves one son and one daughter in England; one son, Mr. George Punccheon, who is in Jardine, Matheson's at Shanghai, and one daughter, who is the wife of Mr. R. Miller of Messrs Butterfield & Swire. Much sympathy will be felt for the relatives in their bereavement.

OUTWARD BOUND
FROM MELBOURNE

London, Sept. 23. Fire broke out to-day in the hold of the 14,982-ton Orient liner, Ormiston, outward bound from Melbourne.

A statement issued in London by the Company to-night says that as a strong wind was blowing at the time, Captain Thorne thought it advisable to anchor in Twofold Bay, 250 miles south of Sydney, in order to deal with the fire before proceeding on the voyage. His latest report states that the fire is confined to one section of the hold and is under control, and there is no cause for anxiety.—British Wireless.

THE MEN WHOM MAP THE COLONY

Royal Engineers

THE important part played by the Royal Engineers in the mapping of the Colonial Empire was emphasised by Brigadier H. S. L. Winterbotham, president of the Geography Section, in a paper read to the British Association meeting in Blackpool recently.

Referring to the survey work in India by Major Jervis, a retired Sapper, and the mapping inquiries in the African colonies, Brigadier Winterbotham said that "fortunately for colonial expansion there have generally been some Royal Engineers handy."

POTTED INFORMATION—Brigadier Winterbotham emphasised the importance of maps.

"Maps," he said, "are potted information about environment, and are indispensable to us and at the moment we are, as regards their production, in the trough and not on the crest. We are living through a cycle of indifference and we are forgetting the lessons of history."

H.K.-Singapore Royal Artillery Name Changed

IT has been announced in Army Orders that His Majesty has been graciously pleased to approve of the following change in the designation of the Hongkong-Singapore Royal Artillery, to take effect herewith:

At one time, this corps supplied a battery to the garrison of Mauritius.

reason to be proud of the mapping of the British Isles. For much of the period we have known ourselves to be the best mapped country in the world.

The survey of India has had an extraordinary record, and for a period of twenty years or so we tackled the mapping of Africa, largely to illustrate its partition, with zeal.

THE FIRST MAPS

"Then came the war, and since that time whether in the short boom or in the long depression, survey departments have shared in a neglect similar to that of the fighting services."

Discussing mapping in the colonies, Brigadier Winterbotham said: "In the first years of colonial expansion a general map compiled from old routes and sketches may suffice. Even so administration finds all sorts of difficulties. One is, everywhere, dependent on a guide."

"There is no stocktaking of the country and its peoples. There is no guide to tribal and trade movements, to the grazing grounds of the different seasons, the limits of this or that local custom, or the places where conflicting interests may result in friction."

"Then come the problems of development. Where shall the railway run (we are nearly always caught napping over that); how shall the road system develop; where are the raw materials (of which we hear so much to-day). It is absurd to try to solve all these by trial and error."

"And finally there are many vitally interested people at home, such for example as ourselves, who can form no accurate mental picture without a map to work on."

AFRICA SUFFERS TO-DAY

"Fortunately for colonial expansion, there have been generally Royal Engineers somewhere handy. To them we owe the first roads, railways, cathedrals, government houses, town-planning, canals, and, of course, maps."

"It was part of our policy in former years that there should be always a large number of these Royal Engineer officers on Survey work and every ex-Director-General of the Ordnance Survey still surviving found his topographical training at that duty."

Brigadier Winterbotham said Africa to-day suffered from a lack of good maps, but eventually he thought the colonial surveys of Africa will follow the model of the surveys of India, Ceylon, and Malaya.

Hongkong Badminton Promises To Receive Stimulation

IF MEISE AND SPAGNOLETTI PLAY HERE: SHANGHAI'S CRICKET TEAM

IF A. G. Meise and Spagnoletti can be persuaded to mix badminton with tennis when they visit the Colony next month, Hongkong followers of the shuttlecock game are assured of a treat hitherto experienced. Acknowledged to be the two foremost exponents of the game in the Far East (that is north of Malaya), Meise and Spagnoletti, if they agree to give exhibitions, can do more to encourage and improve badminton in Hongkong than any number of practice matches between local players. The two Shanghaianders will be in a position to demonstrate the finer points of the game which at present are somewhat hidden mysteries to the majority of our players. Our enthusiasts would be able to pick up a lot of valuable ideas concerning court craft, tactics, footwork and general technique of stroke production. The Hongkong Badminton Association know, as dead keen on getting Meise and Spagnoletti to give exhibitions, and every effort will be directed towards this end. The Association is already in communication with Shanghai, and it is hoped that definite news will be available within the next week. An ideal arrangement would be to persuade the visitors to play one singles match, and to join selected Colony players in doubles. It is also worthy to bear in mind that two other prominent Shanghai badminton exponents will be here at the same time. According to my information Mrs. Burton, who is coming with the Country Club tennis team, is one of the leading Shanghai lady badminton players, while Forbes is no mean wielder of the racket. It is a pity that Mr. Lionel Kew, another Shanghai exponent, will not be in the Colony when our northern visitors arrive otherwise it might have been possible to arrange a Shanghai men's doubles, which would have been most instructive.

Shanghai's Cricket Team

THROUGH the exclusive medium of the Telegraph, Hongkong yesterday learnt what the opposition will be for the cricket Interport in Shanghai next month. Shanghai's team has been completed, with the exception of one player—and he will be a batsman. The impressive feature of the Shanghai team is the number of thoroughly reliable all-rounders which have been chosen. Doot, Divecha, Parker, Madar, Stokes and Leckie are six, and the appearance of these players alone is sufficient to make Hongkong realise what they will be up against. There is general regret that the splendid all-rounder, Donald Leach, is not in the team this year, but

A. J. Barson, according to reports, is going to make an excellent substitute as captain, and he will probably have the matured advice of Pat Madar, who is anticipated, will be elected captain of some of the Shanghai cricketers. Stokes has been awarded a place. And truth to tell it is hard to imagine him being dropped. But apparently Stokes lost form very suddenly during the first part of the season, and even up to very recently was not batting in anything like his well-known brilliant fashion. But Stokes is a fine batsman and his very presence in the team is capable of lending it that moral support which is so often necessary in a match of an Interport calibre. Besides which he can bowl.

Teams Compared

IT seems that both Shanghai and Hongkong can boast exceptionally strong batting sides. Shanghai has Barson, Stokes, Booth, Leckie, Parker, Divecha, Madar, Sevenouks, and, if he is selected, Chatterton, as their chief run-getters. And, according to current form, Bridge and Meston are good for a few runs. In the batting line, at least, Shanghai do not appear to have to "enrily" a single player. Their attack will chiefly depend on medium bowlers, Parker, Stokes and Madar for the spin stuff. This is formidable enough, though there is no earthly reason, given a good wicket, why Hongkong should not be able to make runs. Everything points to the teams being fairly evenly matched in batting, but with Shanghai possessing a slightly more varied attack. A. T. Bridge is Shanghai's new wicket-keeper. He is also a proficient bat, though it is highly doubtful whether he will be as powerful in this department as was S. R. Kermari, his predecessor of 1935. Meston, whose selection has been reserved until the last, is Shanghai's one and only fast bowler. Other candidates for his position were H. B. Cochran and J. C. Lucas. But apart from Meston, Shanghai has only medium pace bowlers and a couple of spinners. G. Chatterton, who is expected to fill the eleventh place, is a fine bat and has made several big scores in club cricket this season. If chosen he will probably open the innings with Stokes. Like their opposite numbers in Hongkong, the Shanghai selectors appear to have made a very good job of their task, and everything is now set for what should be one of the finest Interport matches in the history of these series between Shanghai and Hongkong. We are hoping for the best down here, but we do not shut our eyes to the fact that Shanghai is fielding a very powerful side indeed.

Country Club's Visit

IT says much for the enterprise of Mr. T. G. Figgis and his tennis colleagues in Shanghai that Hongkong will, after all, be given the opportunity of welcoming and entertaining a team from the northern port during next month. The Hongkong L.T.A. also deserve a word of commendation for the manner in which they have accepted the advances of Mr. Figgis and gone ahead with finalising arrangements for a visit. The final composition of the Country Club team is a little disappointing in one respect. It was originally hoped that Mrs. Reader-Harris and Mrs. J. Moir, 1935 Interporters, would be included, but apparently they have been unable to

HOME FOOTBALL RESULTS BOURNEMOUTH BEATEN

London, Sept. 23. Derby County jumped to the top of the table in the first division of the English Football League as a result of today's handsome victory over Wolverhampton Wanderers, whom they beat 5-1.

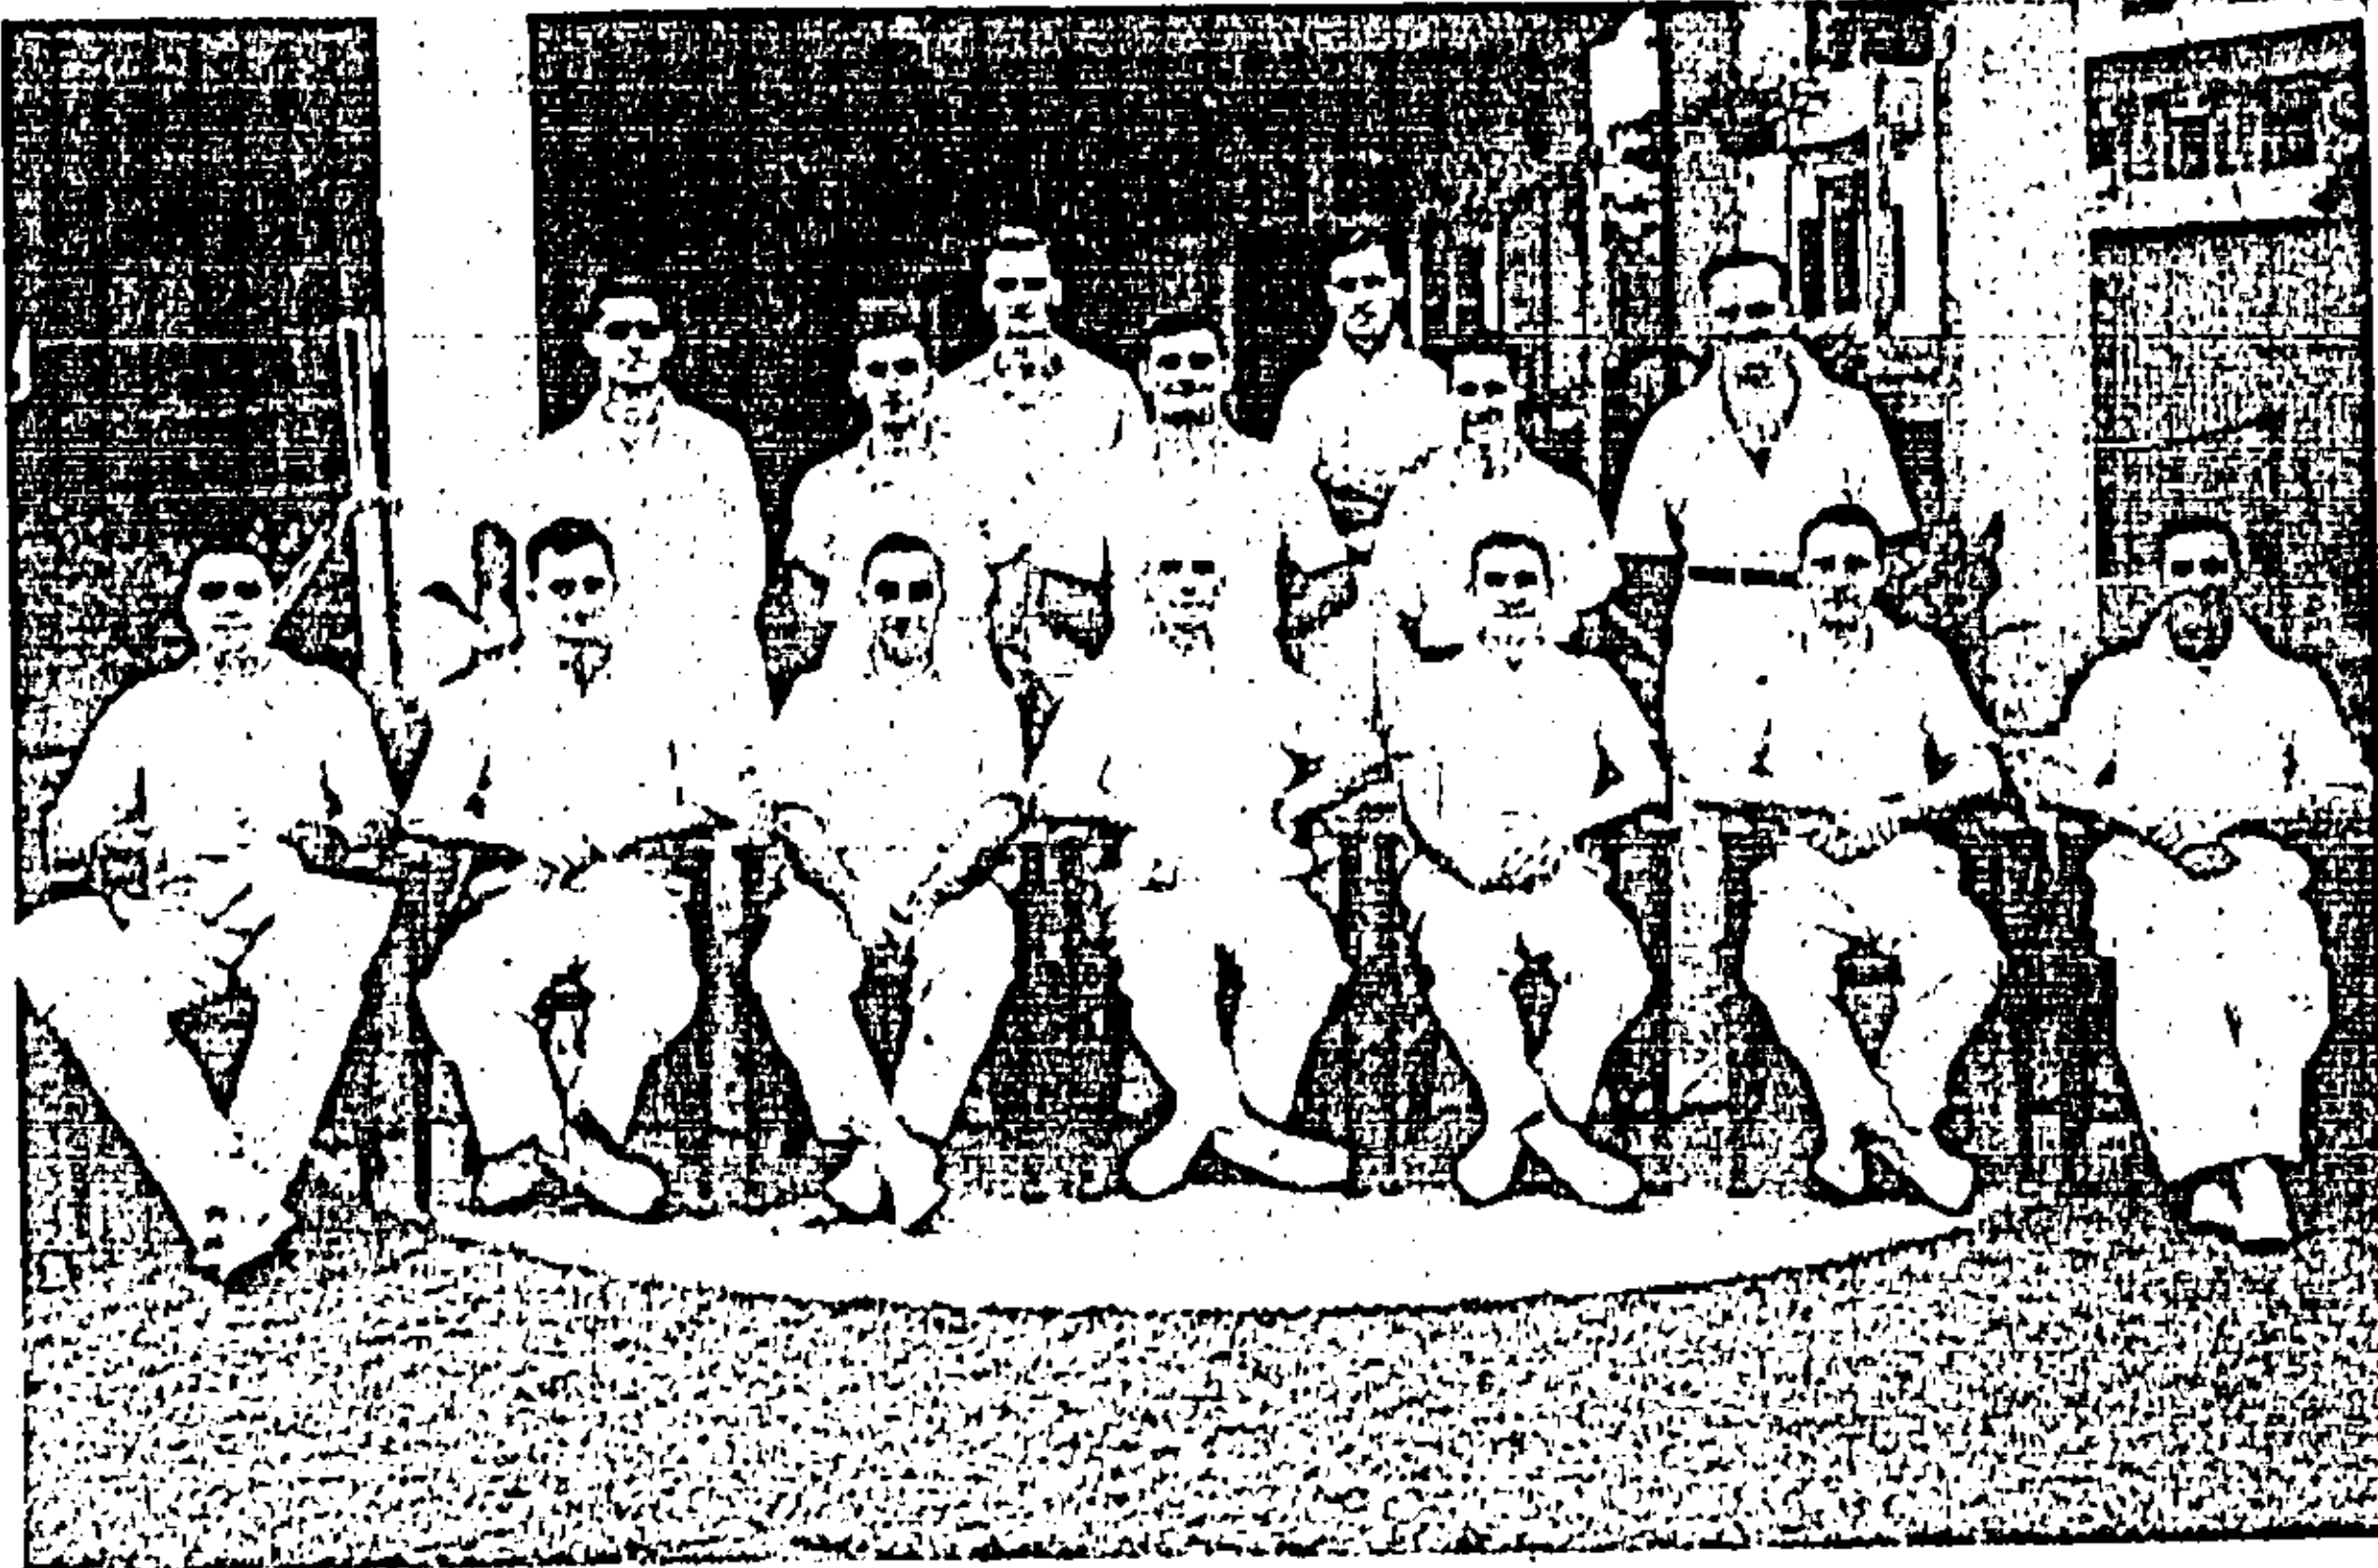

Four matches were played in the southern section of the third division, when Bournemouth missed a chance of taking over the leadership by losing heavily to Watford on the latter's ground.

Reading did well to secure both points from Bristol City at Bristol, while Swindon made short work of Bristol Rovers. Crystal Palace and Queen's Park Rangers shared points in a goalless draw.

A friendly match between the Arsenal and Glasgow Rangers at High-bury, resulted in a win for the London team. Results as cable by Reuter follow.

If Joe Louis Won't Fight In London Then Maxie Baer Will

(By Trevor Wignall)

If only one-half of the stories that reach me are true we shall have more professional fights in England during the coming winter than ever we have had before.

London, of course, is the place selected for the main contests, but I am unfortunately in the position of those who view with some doubt my statement that there was a promoter who was willing to hand Joe Louis $15,000 if he would consent to meet Ben Foord.

It so happened that I was the only newspaper man who knew anything about this offer, which is still under discussion, and so far as I am aware the only other person on the inside was Syd Halls. He occupied an advantageous and highly important position in that he held a contract with Foord for his next two bouts. The position was that Louis and his connections were still considering matters, but I doubt if even they know that if they turn out to be the best proposal they are likely to receive for many a day. Max Baer will attach his signature to an agreement that will bring him to this country within the next few months.

There is a special reason for the $15,000 guarantee, but I will not be able to make it known for some time.

Smart Canton Tennis Team To Play In Hongkong

(By "Veritas")

A tennis team of well high Inter-port standard is being sent down to Hongkong this coming week-end by the Central Park Club at Canton, when return matches will be played with South China Athletic Association on Saturday, and on Sunday the visitors will be entertained by the Chinese Recreation Club.

Lending a very hot combination is Lai Kwong-tsun and Leung Tat-wong, both of whom have played for Canton against Hongkong in Inter-ports.

With them will be Sze To-plk, Chang Chi-keung, Lau King, and Liu Yat-fong.

Incidentally Lau King is a student recently returned from Germany, and is reputed to be a champion tennis player in the making.

C.R.C. TEAM NOT KNOWN

The Chinese Recreation Club team has not yet been finally decided upon. It is understood that Canton wish to play four singles and two or three doubles, and that Tsui Wai-pui, W.C. Hung and Paul Kong are fairly certain to figure in the singles.

Tsui-Yun-pui has already left for Swatow to take up his new business appointment, and will therefore not be available.

IRISH SOCCER LEAGUE DEFEATS ENGLISH SIDE 3-2

KEEN MATCH IN BELFAST KELLY PERFORMS HAT-TRICK

London, Sept. 23. The Irish Football League gained a fine victory over the English League at Belfast today, winning by three goals to two.

Several team changes were announced to the 18,000 spectators before the start of the match, which was played under excellent conditions.

Walker of Belfast Celtic displaced Martin, while Read came in for Lamb in goal. The one change in the English League side was Bestall of Grimsby for Carter.

The English forwards were the more skilful in the early stages of the game, and Steel put the visitors in front with a header after two minutes of play.

Thereafter the Irish defence improved, while the forwards opened up their game. Kelly equalised in the 20th minute with a ground shot, and he gave the Irish team the lead from a penalty ten minutes later.

KELLY'S HAT-TRICK

Kelly completed his hat-trick with a hard drive, and although England rallied they were held by a strong defence.

However, a minute from the interval Westwood got through for the English League and reduced the arrears, Ireland leading 3-2 at half time.

In the second half the Englishmen frequently attacked but were felled by sturdy defenders. On the other hand the Irish forwards, though having less of the ball, were more dangerous near goal, and Sagar had to save brilliantly on two occasions from Shearer.

Brook of Manchester City, operating on the left wing, was outstanding in the English attack, once heading the ball against the bar from a corner.—Reuter.

K.C.C. TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Two Handicap Games Played

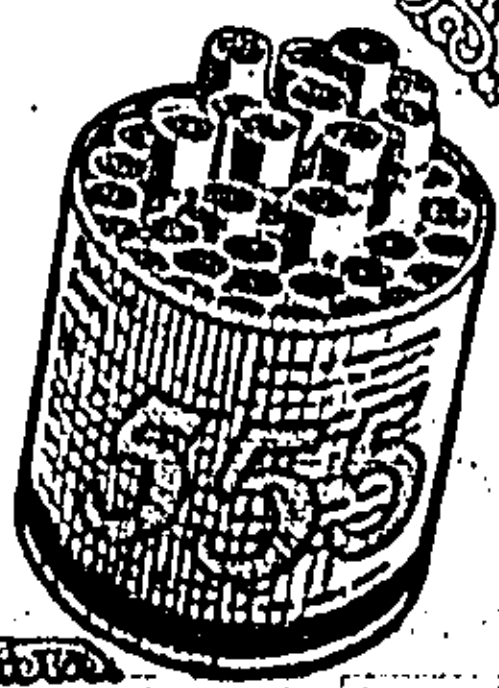

N. A. E. Mackay and S. A. Gray this week qualified to meet each other in the semi-final of the K.C.C. handicap "A" singles tennis tournament.

Yesterday Mackay, playing from scratch, beat F. A. Broadbridge (scratch) 6-0, 8-10, 6-1, while earlier this week Gray (scratch) beat A. E. P. Guest (owe 30/3) 7-5, 6-4.

Lettuce you can eat in five weeks

DEAR HARRY,
So you are back from your honeymoon, and safely installed in your new home with your wife.

It was kind of you to ask me to come and stay with you next week-end, but I'm sure you and Patricia will want to be alone together for a bit longer, so I think, if you don't mind, I'll put off my visit till you're more settled.

Instead, I'll try to tell you in this letter a few of the things you want to know about your garden.

You say Patricia has undertaken to look after the flowers, while you want to grow a few vegetables as quickly as possible, as a surprise for her. Well, it sounds as if you were beginning well, but you mustn't be in too much of a hurry.

There are two kinds, the ordinary cabbage lettuce with crisp, curly leaves, and the cos lettuce with long, straight leaves.

If you take my advice you'll stick to the cabbage; most cos lettuces have to be tied round when they are about half grown, to help them to form heart, which is a nuisance.

Besides, the cabbage lettuce taste nicer; but that is purely my own opinion. Try both if you like, and see for yourself, only if you grow cos, don't forget that tip about tying up.

From the start she was luckier than most girls who go to the city.
The dollars weren't quite gone—
she had not stood behind a counter nor washed dishes in a restaurant—
when she got her first job. She wasn't to be an actress, perhaps, but
at least she was to be on the stage.
She was to be in the chorus of a third rate touring company booked round for a season—in 1912 there were more road companies out than there were to be in later years.

Most of the others of the company complained of the pay, the hotels, the hard "jumps" in day coaches at all hours of the day and night. But to Suzy, if it wasn't exactly heaven, it was much better than the life in an orphanage or looking for a job had been that it seemed good. At least she had made a start. She was on pleasant enough terms with everyone in the company but the only friend she made—or wanted to make—was Maizie. From the start the two girls had liked each other and they soon became good friends. Maizie, being a few years older and having been in other companies, could and did teach her a great deal.

"We'll stick with this outfit until we get back to the big town, kid," Maizie would say. Then we're going out for something bigger and better. You've learned a lot this year; you won't be just a beginner next season. I'm not so good—never will be anything to see the river after or the lights in front of a theatre either, but we'll make a good team.
You stick to me for a while, kid, and see what happens."

"You're a dear to do so much for me," Suzy said.
"Dear nothing," said Maizie who liked to think of herself as being hard-boiled. "You're a lot better than I am. The way I see it is the longer we get together the better we ever will be. What do you say?"

"O.K.," said Suzy.
When they returned to New York at the end of the season, the weary round of managers' offices and agencies began again. They knew they could go out with the old company again in the autumn, but they were determined to find something better. Suddenly and quite by chance they did. On the street they met an old acquaintance of Maizie's, who asked them to have dinner with her. She was feeling rich because she had just signed for a musical comedy going to London. The English, it seems, were partial to American beauties. They stopped at the theatre before they went to the restaurant.

"Can you do anything?" the manager asked Suzy.
"Anything—everything," she said laughingly. "And so can Maizie."
"Well I don't take anybody's word for anything, but we need a couple more girls—show up at rehearsal to-morrow for a try-out."

So Suzy was on her way at last.
"We're the two luckiest girls in the world," said Maizie just before the opening in London. "Here we are where we never thought of being, in a show which is bound to be a hit. Why, it is too good to be true."

That last statement proved to be all too true. The other girls who proved that their idea of humour was not that of the Americans and so after a few weeks, the company disbanded.

"So now what?" said Maizie as they were packing their suitcases to leave the theatre. "Wait for another look at Liberty lighting up the world."

"Not me," said Suzy. "I'm staying right on in this town for a while."
At first they were full of hope, but there came a day when even their high spirits flagged and neither local voice nor the other girls' fears she felt. There just didn't seem any place in all of London for two American girls, who wanted to act or sing or dance.

Maizie decided they should go to Paris—there might be something for them there, and anyway a change would be good for them. But their money was running very low, so it was decided that Suzy should stay on in their London lodging house while Maizie should cross the channel.
Surely one of them would find something soon and send for the other.

So Suzy was left alone in London.
Maizie wrote she had tried everything but the best she could do was to get a job singing in a little cafe, making barely enough to pay for her room and her meals. Suzy joined another company playing the provinces, but it too, failed.

She had managed to pay her room rent—chiefly by buying only enough for one meal a day. Then one day she looked in her purse. She had just one shilling left—and her rent was overdue.

It was a glorious summer day but her room had never seemed so dingy. She heard the landlady coming up the stairs. She ran to the closet, and began putting one on over the other. She couldn't risk trying to take a suitcase out—perhaps she could take most of her scanty wardrobe on her back.

"In a minute," she called in answer to the landlady's pounding on the door. Would that sharp-eyed woman notice anything wrong? No time now to pin up the garments underneath.

One look at Mrs. Beggs and Suzy saw that she had noticed plenty and understood everything.
"So—trying to cheat a respectable woman out of her bill—take that top one off—and the next one."

"I was just trying them on," stammered Suzy—"to see which would look best to go to the races in."
Mrs. Beggs snorted.
"I think I'll wear this one," said Suzy holding up the prettiest frock she had.

"And when, may I ask, are you going to pay me? To-morrow, I suppose. That seems to be your usual answer to the question. And where may I ask, is the money coming from?"

"I'm just about to sign up with one of the biggest managers in London," said Suzy laughingly.
"I know that one," said Mrs. Beggs.
"Many's the time I've heard them very words—and much good they ever did me. I'll just trouble you for your latchkey. Miss—and they're pointing to the dresses lying on the floor, "stay here. I'm soft-hearted to let you keep the only decent one of the lot, but I always was a generous fool. Now then, hand over the key. When you come back with your contract signed, and show it to me, you can come in. Not until then."

Suzy to steady herself, took hold of the window frame and glanced down into the street. In front of the door stood a big touring car. A man was at the wheel and another was just about to step in. She had a sudden inspiration.
"Yoo hoo!" she cried, leaning out.
"I'll be right down."
And before the surprised landlady realized what had happened or had time to demand her key, Suzy was running down the stairs.
(To-morrow: Suzy brings luck to her rescuers and to herself—?)

CHAPTER ONE

A slim blond girl in a Pennsylvania orphanage, dreaming of a life of glory, of movement of romance—an Irish lad working in a London factory, dreaming of the inventions which some day he would work out —a young aristocrat in Paris dreaming of the day when he would fly a plane high above the world—charming woman of the world here there and everywhere, planning rather than dreaming of the important things she would do—
They were miles apart in background, ambition and character as well as in space. That they were ever playing a part in each other's lives, or even so each other in passing, would have seemed impossible. But fate, chance, accident—whatever it is called—has a way of bringing about the most fantastic events. It knows no laws but its own unfathomable ones.

It was Suzy Trent who had the faintest of the tryst the four dissimilar characters were to keep. When she was a little girl, scarcely more than a baby, she would tell herself that some day she was going to travel to far places. Where —it scarcely mattered, just so long as it was in a store, in a shop, in
—it scarcely mattered, just so long
as it was in a store, in a shop, in
—it scarcely mattered, just so long
as it was in a store, in a shop, in

"I don't care at the start," she would say to herself fiercely, "if I have to stand behind a counter all day in a store, if I have to wash dishes in a cheap restaurant—I'm going places and see things and have things before I'm many years older."

Of course she dreamed of being an actress—what young girl doesn't?
Whether she had any talent or not she did not know. But she knew she had two things which were an asset —beauty and determination. So when she left the orphanage, she went straight to New York—of course.

She had only a few dollars but she knew how to make them last a long time. For that she might have said she had not stood behind a counter nor washed dishes in a restaurant—
when she got her first job. She wasn't to be an actress, perhaps, but
at least she was to be on the stage.
She was to be in the chorus of a

The sooner the Better

YOU can sow lettuce seed up to early October, but the sooner you start the better. Sow in shallow drills (that is, tiny furrows made with a stick or the corner of a hoe) 1/4 in. deep, and see that the ground is kept moist in dry weather.

When the seedlings are large enough to handle, thin out to 2 or 3 inches apart, and later again to 9 inches. Each row should be a foot apart from its neighbour.

If you like, you can transplant
the seedlings you have thinned out; not a bad idea, as these will come on a fortnight later than the original rows.

Hoeling between the rows at least once a fortnight assists the vigorous development of the plants.

It's not too late

I SEEM to remember that Patricia used to have a passion for radishes, and it's not too late for you to start growing them now.

I should choose the round or turnip-rooted kind in preference to the oval or long-rooted, as they are generally crisper, and sow short rows, in drills, thinly, to avoid having to do too much thinning out. Just cover the seeds by drawing the rake gently over the bed, and water freely in dry weather.

It is important to thin out finally to about one inch apart, but keep the seedlings well thinned before that, as they cannot grow quickly if overcrowded.

Don't sow a large quantity of radish seed all at once; you won't be able to use it all, and the radishes will only get tough. When the plants from your first sowing are half-grown, sow a new row, and so on; this will ensure you a continuous supply.

And remember that a shady place is best for summer sowings; the ground dries out very quickly in hot weather on a sunny bed.

Sow it and See

AND now what about sowing some parsley for Patricia to use for seasoning and garnishing?

There is an old saying that where parsley flourishes the wife "wears the breeches." I dare say you'll find that out for yourself soon enough.
Anyway, sow some parsley now and see.

Sow thinly, in drills 1/4 in. deep, allowing about one foot of space between each drill. Water after sowing, if the weather is dry, and thin out the seedlings to about 6 in.
apart. The soil should be friable and well broken up.

Parsley seeds germinate slowly, so don't be disappointed if the crop doesn't shoot out of the ground at once. It may not appear for five or six weeks, but it is well worth waiting for, for there is no plant more useful in the kitchen.

Well, so long, Harry my boy, and the best of luck. When I come down to visit you later on I shall expect Patricia to produce a first-class salad, all home-grown. I shall also examine your parsley bed with interest, and hope to discover once and for all if that old saying is true.

Your affectionate,
UNCLE HUGH.

P.S.—Tell Patricia I will write soon as I promised, giving her a few hints for her flower borders. I'm afraid she is impatient and wants quick results too.
